HUMPHRIES ISSUES TEMPORARY ORDER ALLOWING PRIVACY

Action Is Brought by Crippled Edge-File: Permanent Hearing Is To Take Place March 1

A citizen's right of privacy was invoked yesterday in an unusual proceeding in Fulton superior court, whereby an attorney for an alleged usurer's victim obtained a temporary injunction, forbidding collection of the debt or harassing of the borrower pending a hearing March 1 on a permanent injunction.

The order was signed by Judge John D. Humphries, and was directed against W. H. Cutcliffe, described as "trading and doing business" as the Pacific Finance Company in the Mortgage Guarantee building, and his agent, Harold Hoops, who was declared to have threatened "to continue to aggravate and annoy" the petitioner and to "cause petitioner to lose his job," unless he went on paying what was described as exorbitant interest.

Cripple Seeks Relief.
Carl D. Levy, the attorney, a member of the bar association's committee on enforcement of usury laws, acted for Marion Gossett, crippled 22-year-old edge-filer for the firm of A. A. Wood & Son, 438 Magnolia street, N. W. The attorney charged his client paid $81 on loans totaling $30. He said Gossett quit paying last November.

Hoops, the suit charges, "seeks out petitioner while he is at work and makes demand upon him to pay said illegal sums to defendant . . . embarrass petitioner in the presence of his fellow workers and has jeopardized petitioner's job."

Other allegations read: "Petitioner shows that defendant's said agent has threatened to inform his employer and to take garnishment action against petitioner, and further threatens to cause petitioner to lose his job unless petitioner pays defendant."

Threats Charged.
"That said defendant, through his agent, has stated to petitioner that they were going to continue to aggravate and annoy petitioner until he made payments to them."

"That defendant, through his agent, has used abusive language in the hope of frightening petitioner into paying said sums illegally demanded."

The suit, brought as an equity measure, sought return of the $81, plus interest at 7 per cent. Gossett's attorney said his client was but 19 when he first borrowed part of the money.

American Ambulance Unit in Service in Finland

Four Americans have been in active service on the Finnish war front for several weeks, taking their ambulance into the fighting zone day and night to pick up wounded men. They are Robert Newman, of New York; William Mock, Chicago; John Hasey, Bridgewater, Mass., and Lewis Bartlett, of New York and Washington. The picture shows the unit in action.

'USED-CAR WEEK' TO BEGIN MARCH 1

Mayor Issues Proclamation, Foresees Stimulant to Business.

A proclamation fixing the week of March 1 as "Atlanta Used Car Exchange Week," sponsored by the Atlanta Automobile Dealers Association, was issued yesterday by Mayor Hartsfield. Declaring the event would stimulate business, the proclamation read: "Whereas, the automotive industry of Atlanta begins March 1, a city-wide movement to sell and exchange used automobiles; and

"Whereas, the movement has the indorsement of business and civic leaders and will be a vital factor in bringing about further improvement in business conditions; and

"Therefore, I, William B. Hartsfield, mayor of the city of Atlanta, Ga., hereby proclaim the period from March 1 through March 8, 1940, as Atlanta Used Car Exchange Week and encourage all of our citizens to inspect the many bargains offered by Atlanta's automobile dealers."

"Their co-operation in this movement not only will help remove many mechanically defective automobiles from our streets, which will be a direct contribution to the furtherance of our safety campaign, but will materially help business conditions in which all of our people will benefit."

Welfare Conference Appeals Relief Need

Statement Urging Adequate Funds for Needy Sent to Grand Jury; Medical Society Declares 25 Per Cent of Grady Patients Are Undernourished.

Powerful impetus to the movement to provide more public relief for Fulton county's destitute was given yesterday as—

(1) The Georgia Conference on Social Work sent a special statement to the grand jury urging that "the authorities in Fulton county take all necessary steps provided by law to make available adequate funds for the relief of the needy."

(2) The Fulton County Medical Society, through its president, Dr. Charles E. Rushin, pointed to "pitiable and touching conditions" and cited that 25 per cent of Grady hospital patients were admitted suffering from malnutrition and that such diseases as pellagra and tuberculosis, "due directly to dietary deficiency," were showing a "decided increase."

Poll Conducted.
The statement by the social work conference was prepared after a poll of its executive committee by Mrs. Margot Gayle, executive secretary.

It read: "The Georgia Conference on Social Work is deeply concerned with the welfare problems facing the people of Georgia."

"This conference represents all the broad interests of the welfare agencies, both public and private, of the entire state."

"Fulton county, because of its size and importance, set a standard for the rest of the state, and conditions permitted in Fulton county are consequently reflected throughout the state."

"We, the executive committee of the Georgia Conference on Social Work, urge the authorities in Fulton county take all necessary steps provided by law to make available adequate funds for the relief of the needy, or at least to make possible their maintenance."

Officials said "sub normal business" during recent months was responsible for the increase.

BRITISH, FRENCH PATROL SEA OFF NORWAY'S COAST

Attack on German Craft Takes Place in Arctic Waters; Steamer Runs Aground, Goes Down.

BERGEN, Norway, Feb. 26. (AP)—Allied warships, which only last week began an Arctic blockade to halt German-Russian sea traffic along Norway's irregular coast, were reported tonight to have sunk two German vessels in action near the Finnish shore.

Reports from Vardoe, 50 miles northwest of Finland's Petsamo fjord, now occupied by Finns and Reds resume battle on Petsamo front. This story, and others, besides a war map on the isthmus war front, appear on Page 8.

Soviet forces, did not say whether the sunken German vessels were warships or freighters.

Nor was it clear whether the sinkings had taken place within Norwegian territorial waters—which would create within 10 days a second incident threatening Norway's neutral status. Norway replied only yesterday to a British memorandum in the case of the German ship Altmarek, boarded February 16 at Gjoviksfjord by British sailors who took off 299 British captives.

Steamer Sinks.
The 4,354-ton German steamer Orizaba, which ran aground today at Skjervoy, near Hammerfest, 175 miles west of Vardoe, was reported tonight to have sunk. There was no indication that war action had figured in her sinking.

A ship passing the vicinity said there was no sign of the Orizaba except floating debris. The crew was reported saved.

The Orizaba was one of six Nazi merchantmen reported on February 13 to have left Vigo, Spain, in an effort to get through the Allied blockade. Two others of the six, the Morea and Rostock, were intercepted by Allied sea patrols.

The attacks today were reported from the northernmost tip of Norway, where a British naval detachment of unknown size was known to have been patrolling last week. Press reports said French warships had joined the patrol.

Allies Dissatisfied.
The warships took up their station there after the British and French had expressed dissatisfaction with Norway's "ineffective" neutrality in permitting German ships to use Norway's territorial waters past the blockade. In Paris it was announced that measures would be taken to put a stop to the traffic.

Vardoe is west of Soviet Russia's Arctic port of Murmansk, where a large number of German merchantmen, including the big liner Bremen, took refuge at the start of the war. The Bremen and a few other large German ships subsequently got home from Murmansk by sailing inside Norwegian waters.

Jimmy Grooms His Godson Here

Here's one of the numerous photographs taken of Jimmy Roosevelt's arrival in Atlanta yesterday afternoon, this one showing the tall son of the President, bald head shining, as he greets his godson, two-year-old Brumby McGehee. The child's mother, Mrs. Charles C. McGehee, stands by. Roosevelt was the guest of Mr. and Mrs. McGehee last night.

Smilin' Jimmy Arrives Here 72 Hours Late

Roosevelt's Son Talks Pleasantly to All But Says Nothing.

By FRANK DRAKE.
Smilin' Jimmy—one of those Roosevelt boys who are always involved in some traffic accident or other, finally arrived at Candler field yesterday afternoon, only three days and 25 minutes late by the calendar and clock.

Greeting his Atlanta hosts, Mr. and Mrs. Charles C. McGehee, and their son, Brumby, aged 2, the Rooseveltian heir parried questions of newspapermen like a man playing ping-pong and all the time being as nice and friendly as his father is in press conferences.

On all subjects, young Mr. Roosevelt was as full of information as an empty beer barrel.

While he was not answering any questions, Mr. McGehee volubly assured him that he'd done everything he could to prevent there being any publicity about his visit here.

It was a hectic scene at the airport as the plane bearing Smilin' Jimmy dropped down at the end of its trip from Miami, near where Jimmy's chauffeur was involved in another traffic incident only a few hours before.

STEVE JOHNSTON, CIVIC LEADER, DIES

Formerly Was Head of Grady Hospital, and Prominent in Politics.

Steve Johnston, retired superintendent of Grady hospital and one of the most colorful figures in the city's political history, died yesterday at the hospital he helped build to one of the greatest in the south.

Eighty-four years of age, the veteran political leader had been in ill health for nearly a year. Until he was fatally stricken last Wednesday, however, he had remained active.

A native of Portland, Me., Mr. Johnston spent his early youth there, coming to Atlanta as a young man. He first entered business here as passenger agent for the old Queen and Crescent Railroad, later becoming a mail carrier in the closing days of the nineteenth century.

At the turn of the century, he again changed occupations to become a real estate auctioneer in the booming period that saw Atlanta changing from a small Georgia town to a great southern metropolis.

At that time, he entered public life for the first time—as a volunteer fireman. For the next quarter of a century, he remained one of the city's leading political figures, becoming first a member of the

NAMES RELEASED WITH APPROVAL OF INVESTIGATORS

28 Convicted Operators Given Their Freedom Within Year by Rivers, the Solicitor Discloses

In the midst of the determined city-county drive against the numbers racket, which has been under way for two weeks, Solicitor General John A. Boykin, with the consent of the Fulton grand jury, yesterday made public the names of 28 convicted operators of the "bug" who have been pardoned within the year. The pardons were granted by Governor Rivers.

Of the 28 pardons granted, 15 went to those operators who were caught in the 1937 anti-lottery campaign and drew five-year suspended sentences when they pleaded guilty to the charges and paid $1,000 fines each.

Pardon Dates Given.
The group includes the following with the dates they were pardoned:

Cecil Johnson, January 15, 1939.
Clayton Hall, May 25, 1939.
Albert Hall, May 25, 1939.
Dottie Hall, May 25, 1939.
Leonard Hall, May 25, 1939.
Ben Hall, May 25, 1939.
R. P. Moore, November 12, 1939.
Henry Shorter, June 27, 1939.
Mercer Harbin, April 5, 1939.
Walter Cutcliffe, March 20, 1939.
J. F. King, May 23, 1939.
J. Cassels, April 25, 1939.
Andrew Bearden, January 25, 1939.

Glenn House, April 1, 1939.
Miller Parks, December 5, 1939.

Others Given Freedom.

In addition, the following 13 persons who have drawn straight jail sentences for lottery convictions, have been pardoned:

H. Spinks, June 1, 1939.
James McGee, June 23, 1939.
Julius Mitchell, June 27, 1939.
Morris Walker, June 6, 1939.
Mrs. Maud Gamblin, July 17, 1939.
Katherine Dowell, July 17, 1939.
Ralph Harrell, July 20, 1939.
Simon Hagans, August 8, 1939.
Elijah White, August 19, 1939.
Leon Harris, August 21, 1939.
Will Turner, September 8, 1939.
Roy H. Speck, December 12, 1939.
James Chandler, December 21, 1939.

Jury to Reopen Probe.
Meanwhile, the grand jury announced it will resume its probe of the "bug" at a session today. More than a score of indictments, charging lottery and vagrancy, have been drawn and will be submitted to the jury for action this afternoon.

A special committee investigating the "bug" met yesterday afternoon, and it was understood it is preparing a recommendation.

His Dental Plate A War Casualty

LONDON, Feb. 26.—(P)—The strangest western front casualty yet on the record turned up today in the case of a British airman with dental plate trouble. He put his false teeth in a glass of water one night, and the water froze and broke them. Regular rationings were too hard, so this aviator eats at a French restaurant, the government paying the check. This is to go on until new teeth are made for him.

COMMISSIONERS VOTE PAY RAISES DESPITE WARNING

Chastain Asks Board To Wait Until Grand Jury Recommends Relief Tax for 1940.

Ignoring a warning by County Commissioner Troy Chastain not to raise salaries of county employees until the relief tax recommendation is made by the present grand jury, Fulton county commissioners yesterday by a vote of 4 to 1 increase the pay of 12 employees in the plumbing and electrical inspection department a total of $190 a month.

The increases were ordered at a special unannounced meeting that began before 8 o'clock yesterday morning.

Chairman E. L. Almond sponsored the raises while Chastain cast the lone dissenting vote.

Chastain, in opposing them, said:

"You are doing wrong. This is not the time to act. These adjustments should be considered at the same time that similar requests are considered and there should be no consideration at all until the grand jury has recommended the 1940 relief tax and we have adopted a permanent budget."

On January 17, the commissioners, after receiving requests from numerous department heads for salary increases totaling about $30,000 a year took the following action as recorded on the commissioner's minutes:

"Commissioner Ragsdale made a motion that all salaries remain the same for the year 1940 as they were in 1939 with the exception of the request already granted the general of the Atlanta circuit. Commissioner Hailey seconded the motion and it was unanimously adopted."

The pay increases voted yesterday follow:

W. P. Waltrip, county plumbing inspector, $200 to $225 a month; T. H. Bennet, county electrical inspector, $200 to $225 a month; J. S. Price, $175 to $185; Walker Browne, $160 to $175; E. C. Coker, $150 to $160; C. W. Mitchell, $160 to $175; Guy Eaves, $160 to $175; H. L. Harper, $160 to $175; J. W. Rafferty, $102.50 to $110; G. W. Rayner, $107.50 to $115; W. Wright, $100 to $125; and Mrs. Maude Brooks, $110 to $125.

Effective March 1.

They will become effective March 1.

Dewey L. Johnson, city superintendent of electrical affairs and president of the Atlanta Federation of Trades, appeared before the board in behalf of the increases.

Other action by the commissioners follows:

Re-established the office of payment of public works and directed that salaries, formerly paid semi-monthly in cash through the county purchasing office, be paid by check through the office of the clerk of the board.

2. Transferred Paymaster William Patten to a new position of superintendent of rolling equipment. Patten will have charge of the maintenance of all of the county's trucks, shovels, rollers and motorized equipment.

County Social Worker's Diary Tells Poignant Story of Helpless Poverty

The chief point of this absorbing diary of a Fulton county welfare department case worker's efforts, moment by moment, to stave off starvation and freezing for her charges, with pitifully inadequate money allowances, is its absolute honesty and candor. All happenings are actual facts. Only names are fictitious.

Here is what the social worker does. Each worker in Fulton county has 200 "clients," or families. The average, according to experts, should not be more than 100. Faced with two times too many lives to shield, financed by pennies, the social worker's lot, like the Gilbert and Sullivan policeman "is not a happy one."

This authentic diary gives Atlanta a look at the inside of the welfare workers' office.

weights 80 pounds? Her schedule for relief is $2.60 for food each month and $3 for rent each month.

I smiled at her and said, "I hope you didn't walk to the office?"

"No, ma'am, a neighbor brought me in a truck. He's waiting downstairs to take me home. I had to see you. I got to move. The folks I'm with are going to the country and I can't go with 'em. I got to stay near Zella. I've looked and looked for a room and there ain't any real cheap ones. And when folks find out I'm going, they don't want me."

A social worker should never become emotional, but suddenly there was a lump in my throat. "We'll find you a room, Mrs. Denny. A nice one near Zella!"

She got up smiling. "Thank you, Miss Neal. I knew you'd help me if you could." I couldn't give George his rent, but at least I could let him "talk out his troubles" for a while. But just then Mrs. Gillam came to the desk.

"Excuse me, but Mrs. Harris is on the phone. She says the school attendance officer is after her, and she can't send the children to school until she gets her clothes order."

"Tell her I'm sorry, the warehouse sent everything to Albany for the disaster victims. I'll order the things as soon as I can." "I'll tell her," said Mrs. Gillam. "And—oh, yes, juvenile court called to remind you that the Jefferson children's case is to be heard tomorrow morning and they want you there."

Ill Woman Calls.

Poor George, how could he "talk out his troubles" when his listener was constantly interrupted. But at last he left, not satisfied (how could he be, with $1.30 every two weeks), but no longer belligerent. "You will try and help with the rent next month won't you, Miss Neal?"

The next interview was with Mrs. Denny. She shouldn't have come to the office at all. The doctor in the Atlanta Tuberculosis Clinic told her to get plenty of rest and nourishing food.

Mrs. Denny never went to school a day in her life. As a child she "worked in the fields" and later got work in a cotton mill. Mr. Denny had been a mill worker, too. But he wasn't well even when they married. They had one child, Zella—an idiot. Mr. Denny died when Zella was small. Someone helped Mrs. Denny get Zella placed in the Home for the Incapacitated, and she's been there for nearly 16 years. Mrs. Denny worked as long as she could. She washed clothes, scrubbed floors, lived with another mill family doing all the work in exchange for a place to sleep and three meals a day. She always stayed near the "home" so she could see Zella every day.

When Mrs. Denny was examined at A. T. A. the doctor had little to say. Not only active tuberculosis, but advanced pellagra.

$2.60 for Food.

I looked at Mrs. Denny, so thin and frail. I wondered if she which the grand jury and the law enforcement agencies have been giving him in the present campaign.

Police activities yesterday found the county police "bug" squad making one arrest, a Negro, John Walker, who posted $1,000 for release from Fulton Tower. Walker was arrested at North avenue and Spring street.

Albert Newsom, an aged Negro, being held in Fulton Tower since February 16 on a charge of lottery, died early yesterday at Grady Hospital. He complained of being ill and, shortly after being removed to the hospital, died. Death was caused by diabetes, according to hospital attaches.

calling for a sweeping probe of the numbers racket here by the next grand jury.

Solicitor General Boykin is in favor of this move. His staff has been gathering data on the "bug" for more than two months, and he says he is prepared to launch such an investigation with the help of the new jury and police departments.

Danger of Cutting Relief Expenses Too Low Is Cited by Atlantan

Readers Continue To Praise Constitution for Bringing to Light the Real Situation Behind Atlanta's Problem of Caring for Needy.

Additional Atlantans yesterday added their praise to the editorials and news stories carried recently by The Constitution on the Fulton county relief problem. The comments refer especially to news stories by Betty Mathis about the poverty stricken family of "Eva" and "Fred," who are symbolic of thousands of other families in Fulton county, and to articles by Harold Martin and Willard Cope, of The Constitution staff.

Excerpts from the messages follow:

Nelson C. Jackson, 67 Ashby street, S. W. "Any person who understands the problem of any type of business can readily see that there is a point below which the cutting of administrative costs will inevitably result in a waste of money to the organization. Relief costs in Atlanta are extremely low and in comparison with other cities of this size conditions are deplorable. I want to commend The Constitution for bringing this matter before the people."

Hopes for Results.

C. P. Roberts—"I have read with interest the articles appearing in The Constitution recently by Betty Mathis. I think you are to be congratulated for placing this information before the public and trust that it will bear fruit."

E. P. Paris—"My frank opinion is that what you are doing will be invaluable to the city of Atlanta and this country. I am sure it is continued long enough. I just want to commend The Constitution for the stand they have taken and to express the hope that you will continue to publish actual facts and information so that our citizens will have at least an intelligent understanding as to the actual conditions existing in this community."

Best Job Yet.

Mrs. Frank E. Garnett, 439 North Highland avenue, N. E. "I have been much interested in the account of 'Eva' and her problems and was wondering if that is not the very best thing The Constitution had done . . . Yet."

Ellen A. Ives, 3599 Piedmont road—"I am grateful to The Constitution for shedding light on a subject on which all good people should be thoroughly informed in order that they may understand and be helpful."

Florence van Sickle, Executive Secretary, Child Welfare Association—"The articles and editorials in The Constitution on the relief situation seem to me one of the finest pieces of work a newspaper has done. You have placed before the public, fairly—honestly and courteously—the conditions of those people who are the responsibility of the county."

AWAIT PROMOTIONS.

WASHINGTON, Feb. 26.—(P)—The President has approved for promotions, when vacancies occur, the following naval lieutenants (junior grade) to the rank of lieutenant: Harry G. Moore, Savannah, Ga.; Hinton A. Owens, Augusta, Ga.; Charles G. Moore, Milledgeville, Ga.; and Everett E. Seagraves, Macon, Ga.

AIRLINE ANNOUNCES TRIPS TO BERMUDA

'Shuttle' Schedule Will Operate Between Island and New York.

NEW YORK, Feb. 26.—(P)—Pan-American Airways tonight announced that beginning March 15, it would operate a larger, more commodious airliner on its "shuttle" route between the United States and Bermuda—on the same date that its eastbound trans-Atlantic planes begin skipping the British Crown colony.

A 42-ton Boeing flying boat, of the same type employed in the trans-Atlantic service, will be put on the five-hour run between the islands and this continent in place of the 26-passenger Sikorsky plane now in use.

Depending on weather and wind conditions, the Boeing plane will be able to carry up to 60 passengers.

MRS. GERALD P. NYE.

MRS. GERALD P. NYE WILL SEEK DIVORCE

Suit Against Senator To Be Filed Some Time This Week.

WASHINGTON, Feb. 26.—(P)—Mrs. Gerald P. Nye, wife of the North Dakota senator, intends to seek a divorce.

She said today that the petition would be filed this week, but would not discuss details of her plans. Nye was out of the city.

Senator and Mrs. Nye have been living apart since last fall, she at the family residence here, and he at the home of his secretary, Gerald Mowbray, former Fargo, N. D. newspaper man.

Mrs. Nye is the former Anna Margaret Munch, of St. Joseph, Mo. She married Nye, at that time an Iowa newspaperman, in 1916. They have three children.

Nye, a Republican, has been a member of the senate since 1925. He was re-elected last fall to a six-year term.

PRESIDENT MAY HEAD FOR U. S. LATE TODAY

ABOARD U. S. S. LANG, AT SEA, Feb. 26.—(P)—(Via Wireless) President Roosevelt will arrive early tomorrow morning at Balboa for a series of conferences on Panama Canal defenses with American naval, military and civilian officials, and for talks with President Augusto Boyd of Panama and Panamanian political leaders.

Concluding his personal survey aboard the cruise, Tuscaloosa, of distant and near-by canal defenses, Mr. Roosevelt will inspect army and navy installations at the Pacific end, transit the canal, and probably head toward the United States by dusk.

In the pediatric department 50 per cent of the children admitted show signs of malnutrition. Statistics at the hospital show that pellagra, a disease due directly to dietary deficiency, has shown a decided increase. The patients treated at the Atlanta Tuberculosis Association, given adequate treatment by the best trained physicians of our city, are handicapped in their recovery because of their lack of nourishing food so essential in the treatment of this disease.

Could Be Prevented.

"This presents to you the difficulty the clinics and physicians are faced with in restoring these people to health and usefulness. No matter how adequate the medical attention may be it cannot effect much if people have insufficient food and clothing. We believe that many of their illnesses would be prevented and would correct themselves if they had enough food to assure them the necessary nutrition to fight diseases brought on and aggravated by lack of food and exposure."

"To see them on our streets causes many of us to pity them but to see them suffering the pain and ravage of disease caused by the pangs of hunger creates a great desire to see them have adequate relief."

"To this end I sincerely hope that measures will be taken by the good people of Atlanta to help those who are poor, sick, and needy."

Ben F. Meyer, Correspondent For A. P. in Mexico, Visits Here

Former Atlanta Newspaperman Is Authority on Mexican Politics.

Friends of Ben F. Meyer, correspondent of the Associated Press in Mexico who served for 11 years in the Atlanta bureau, were welcoming him yesterday upon his return for a brief visit.

His year and a half in Mexico City not only had imparted a thorough sunburn but an almost encyclopedic knowledge of the mores and political methods of America's fiery, at times tempestuous, and always closest southern neighbor.

One thing about the Mexicans, they're great single-term devotees.

No Re-election. "Ever since old Porfirio Diaz took over and held onto things for 30 years, the Mexican people have favored new faces at fixed six-year intervals," he said. "The 1910 revolution was based on 'true suffrage and no re-election,' and the spirit still prevails."

President Lazaro Cardenas will relinquish active administration December 1. Thus an election is scheduled for July 7. The two principal candidates are Manuel Avila Camacho, who is regarded as the administration's man, and an independent, Juan Andreu Alameda, his former secretary of agriculture who resigned and tried to foment a revolution. The President really had broken the movement by an airplane broadcast of pamphlets, which were made effective by his having fostered education among peasants.

Modification Advocated. Some modification of the agrarian laws is being advocated, so that individual ownership of presently communal farmlands will be possible. The revolution is still strong, and collectivist principles largely prevail. Although the means of communications are governmentally owned, there is no attempt at censorship, and the press enjoys freedom.

Meyer, one of the most popular newspapermen ever to work in Atlanta, will remain here until Thursday.

SOUTHERN BELL RENAMES HEADS

James E. Warren Chosen President; Directors Also Re-elected.

At a meeting of the board of directors of the Southern Bell Telephone and Telegraph Company, held in Atlanta yesterday, the following officers were re-elected for 1940:

James E. Warren, president; George J. Yundt, Hal S. Dumas, Charles A. Stair and Edward D. Smith, vice presidents; P. W. Greene, secretary. Harry S. Stone was reappointed general auditor. J. P. Warren was reappointed assistant secretary and assistant treasurer, and S. B. Naff was appointed assistant secretary.

At stockholders' meeting of the company held Friday all of the present directors of the company were re-elected as follows:

John B. Clark, New York; Paul M. Davis, Nashville, Tenn.; Hal S. Dumas, Robert F. Maddox, John K. Otley, Edward D. Smith, Charles A. Stair, Atlanta; Frederick W. Symmes, Greenville, S. C.; James E. Warren, Mell R. Wilkerson and George J. Yundt, Atlanta.

Advantages of Married Life Are Listed by Prison Editors

Editors of the Tattlall Tattler, state prison publication, seem to be on the side of Cupid.

The February issue of the magazine, which was out yesterday, contained this bit of information: "Unmarried men are more inclined to commit crimes, more liable to commit suicide, have a higher death rate, and have a stronger inclination toward insanity than married males."

The February issue is the first one out since the editors recently complained of financial difficulties.

Discussing farming activities at the prison, the publication points out that the cultivated area has been increased from 527 acres in 1937 to 2,160 acres in 1938 and to 2,650 acres in 1939.

In 1939 a yield of corn carefully estimated at 23 bushels per acre was harvested from 1,050 acres. The editors point out that this compares favorably with the state's 10-year average production (1927-1937) of 9.8 bushels per acre.

The total number of cows on the farm has been increased from approximately 180 in January, 1939, to 315 on January 1, 1940.

The farm is operated by the Board of Regents of the University System of Georgia.

CULLODEN GROWERS WIN COTTON AWARD

ATHENS, Ga., Feb. 26.—(AP)—

The Culloden One-Variety Cotton Improvement Association of Monroe County was announced today as Georgia's outstanding contributor to cotton crop improvement in 1939.

E. C. Westbrook, extension service agronomist and chairman of the Georgia cotton improvement committee, announced the award, which carries with it a silver cup presented by the Georgia Cotton Manufacturers' Association.

The Culloden group is one of the state's first improvement communities and the award for 1939 was based upon uniformly good grade and staple reports, as returned by the cotton marketing division of the United States Department of Agriculture.

HAPEVILLE SEEKS PAVING RESUMPTION

City, WPA Heads Will Meet Today, Discuss Minimum Costs.

Hapeville's stalled WPA street project will be discussed this afternoon by representatives of the city's government and federal agency officials, in an effort to reach some agreement whereby the work can be resumed at a minimum of expense.

The $280,000 project, calling for the paving of 23 streets, was suspended February 1 by the Hapeville council, which charged the WPA with "excessive costs" in that, it was said, some $32,000 had been spent in six months' time for only partial completion of one mile of street work.

Conferring with Charles M. Johnston, assistant district director of WPA operations, will be Hapeville's Mayor Eugene King, City Clerk Elvis Hopper, Engineer D. Q. Mathis, Councilman Brown Tyler, and Captain F. J. McCormack, chairman of the bond commission which in 1936 raised $9,000, the community's share of the project. This fund is said to have been depleted by the previous year, to an extent of $2,000.

Mayor King said last night that the city wishes to reach some program whereby it can have the paving resumed and possibly completed at little or no further expense to the community.

He Owns 110 Clocks But Has Desk Call

STATE SERVICE FINDS 167 JOBS

Atlanta Office Says 98 Posts Permanent.

A total of 167 persons were placed last week through the Atlanta office of the Georgia State Employment Service, Manager Alfred F. Scogin announced yesterday.

Of the total jobs obtained 98 were regular positions and 69 were temporary, Scogin said.

During the same week, 3,130 residents of Fulton and DeKalb counties filed claims for unemployment compensation, he added. Of that number, 435 were initial claims, seven were based on partial unemployment, and 2,688 were based on continued unemployment.

BASHFUL BOYS' WEEK BACKFIRES ON MALES

SKIATOOK, Okla., Feb. 23.—(AP)—

Young men petitioned Mayor Roy Spafford to proclaim "bashful boys' week," when the girls would do the courting. Spafford did it, but some of the boys are sorry now. Many of them have been "stood up" on dates, and a leap year dance is coming.

"This is a good chance to get even," Miss Catherine Goins explained. She plans to make dates for the dance, then break two of them too late for the boys to get other "escorts."

GIRL LOSES HER EYE WHEN ARROW IS SHOT

BLYTHERVILLE, Ark., Feb. 11.—

(AP)—Lenamie Berry, 17, daughter of F. C. Berry, of Steele, Mo., 13 miles north of here, lost an eye today, due to an accident on an impromptu archery range rigged up inside a neighbor's home. An arrow fired by a 13-year-old neighbor boy at a target on the front door pierced her eye when she reached the door just as the shaft was loosed. She was brought to a Blytheville hospital for treatment.

SNOOZE ON HIGHWAY COSTS TRUCKMAN $23

SCOTTS BLUFF, Neb., Feb. 26.—

(AP)—The nap E. C. Hewett, oil transport driver, took along the highway near here cost him $23. He became tired while driving, stopped his truck, and curled up in the cab to sleep. Police, awakening him, pointed out his truck was parked partly on the highway, and no warning flags had been placed nearby. A justice fined him the $23.

REYNOLDS TO SHARE SON WITH EX-WIFE

LOS ANGELES, Feb. 26.—(AP)—

Custody of Richard Roland Reynolds, two-year-old son of the divorced J. Louis Reynolds, will be shared by his parents.

A custody action brought by Mrs. Reynolds, here seeking a film career, was marked "off calendar" today after attorneys for the mother and the son of the Virginia tinfol family reported an out-of-court settlement had been reached.

STEEL MEN REMOVE POT FROM TOT'S HEAD

MARTINS FERRY, Feb. 26.—

A worried mother from near-by Wheeling, W. Va., brought a "rush order" into the Laughlin tin plant of the Carnegie-Illinois Steel Corporation.

Her two-year-old daughter had her head stuck in a tin pot and couldn't get it out. Mechanics freed her in a half hour.

BOY'S POCKET MONEY REFUSED BY BANDIT

INDIANAPOLIS, Feb. 26.—(AP)—

A holdup man drew a revolver on two 15-year-old filling station attendants and demanded money.

One gave him $47 from the till; the other, Wayne Messersmith, offered him $3.75 from his pockets. The robber took the company funds, but wouldn't accept the $3.75.

JAYCEES' LEADERS NAME COMMITTEES

Local Presidents Meet Here, Pick Georgia 'Co-ordinating' Units.

More than 50 presidents of Georgia Junior Chambers of Commerce met yesterday at the Piedmont hotel, appointed project committees to serve as a state co-ordinating unit, adopted three resolutions, and laid plans for the 22nd annual convention to be held in June in Washington, D. C.

Resolutions were passed favoring the work of the Citizens Road league, which is striving for highway improvement, favoring the fight for an equalized railroad freight rate for the south, and favoring the completion of the proposed gasoline pipe line from Port Saint Joe, Fla. to Atlanta.

State committees on aviation, wild-life preservation, social hygiene, agriculture, forest conservation, youth welfare, civil identification and peach promotion were appointed. The state committees act as an interlocking link between local committees and national headquarters.

The Georgia Jay-Cee body is an affiliate of the United States Junior Chamber of Commerce, which represents nearly 175,000 young men in all 48 states. Delegates from each local chamber will attend the national convention under the auspices of the state board of directors, which is composed of the presidents of each local chamber.

TEXTILE WORKER DIES AFTER CRASH

Andrew Whitmire, Hall Resident, Paid Tribute.

GAINESVILLE, Ga., Feb. 26.—Andrew J. Whitmire, 56-year-old textile worker, died in a local hospital at midnight Saturday of injuries received in a traffic collision. His wife also was critically injured, and his son-in-law, Carlton Dale, the driver, received minor injuries.

Heard Castleberry, driver of the other car, is held in Hall county jail on reckless driving charges, which Sergeant A. L. Bagley, of the state patrol, said yesterday, would be changed to a warrant charging involuntary manslaughter. Services were held today at the Calvary Baptist church.

Born in Forsyth county, Whitmire had lived here many years. He was a member of the Baptist church. Surviving, in addition to his wife, are a son, A. W. Whitmire, and two daughters, Mrs. Dale and Miss Imogene Whitmire, all of Gainesville; a brother, Early Whitmire, of Atlanta; three sisters, Mrs. D. F. Emmett and Miss Mitie Whitmire, of Hall county, and Mrs. Matt Reed, of Oakwood, and four grandchildren.

They Plan State Work, Prepare for Convention

Officers of the Georgia Junior Chamber of Commerce, the executive board of which met yesterday to make committee appointments, are (left to right), President Wiley L. Moore Jr., of Atlanta; Vice President S. Jack Whitehurst, of Thomasville; Secretary W. Guy McKenzie, of Bainbridge, and Vice President Frank Pierce, of Augusta. Resolutions and plans for the 1940 convention in Washington also were discussed.

WORK IS OUTLINED FOR CHILD WELFARE

Chairmen and Committees Announced by Mrs. Frank H. Neely.

Chairmen, standing committees and personnel of the Child Welfare Association were announced yesterday by Mrs. Frank H. Neely, newly elected president. Plans for the year's work of the board of directors also were outlined.

Mrs. Neely stressed a plan for a study of conditions of children in Fulton and DeKalb counties and the place of the Child Welfare Association as a private child-placing organization in the social welfare picture. The board went on record endorsing the effort being made through the newspapers and the place of the Child Welfare Association as a private child-placing organization in the social welfare picture.

Chairmen named follow: Mrs. Dan MacDougall, memorial fund; Mrs. C. E. Harrison, publicity and interpretation; Mrs. Ryburn Clay, volunteer; Mrs. John Rutland and Mrs. T. Bolling Gay, medical service; Mrs. W. Perrin Nicholson Jr., cases; H. R. Stone, finance; William L. Fulghum, personnel; Mrs. Paul M. Potter, scholarship and education; Mrs. William Hampton Flowers, chairman children's budget; Robert Sams, Walter Dillon, legal committee.

Various study groups were formed to discover and delve into these questions: What opportunities for vocational training in city, county and state? What placement of children? Are there effective training? Mrs. Herbert Elias and Charles Currie.

What schools and institutional facilities are maintained for Negro children in the city, county and state? General education, special schools and institutions, both public and private—Miss Amy Chadwick, Mrs. C. E. Harrison and Colonel C. A. Bach.

What scholarship funds are available for children both in general education and the arts?—Mrs. Paul M. Potter, Mrs. T. Bolling Gay and Harold T. Patterson.

What are the conditions in the public school system in Fulton and DeKalb counties and the city of Atlanta for both white and Negro children?—Mrs. Herbert Elias, Dr. William V. Gardner and Mrs. James Ragan.

What care is available for dependent, neglected and delinquent children in Fulton and DeKalb counties, both public and private?—John A. Ottley Jr., Walter Dillon, Mrs. Harrison Hines and Mrs. W. Perrin Nicholson Jr.

What are the laws of the state of Georgia governing adoption? Are there effective?—Robert Sams and Mrs. Arthur Madison.

What are the library facilities for children and where are the library centers?—Mrs. Hughes Spalding and Mrs. Dan MacDougall.

What facilities are there for recreation?—Mrs. C. E. Harrison, Dr. Robert Burns and J. P. Jones.

TEACHER'S PADDLING RULED 'EXCESSIVE'

LITTLE ROCK, Ark., Feb. 26.—(P)—An Arkansas school boy who tossed a paper wad at his teacher is subject to "reasonable" but not "cruel or excessive punishment," the state supreme court ruled today.

The decision upheld the discharge of Teacher Loyce O. Berry by the directors of a rural Baxter county school district, for wounding a poodle on a 15-year-old pupil who made him the target for his paper-way tossing activities.

HOW MERITA CAPTURED ENERGY

Mother, chatting in the living room or working in the kitchen—Dad at work, bringing in the shekels—Johnny in school or at play—Mary having dates or Sally-cutting paper dolls—the whole loving family needs the vital, up-and-at-'em energy that is packed in every mouthful of delicious Merita Bread. Its carefully-chosen, skillfully-mixed ingredients are rich in stimulating nutrition. They are reverently baked and protectively wrapped—and you get their health-giving strength in its most toothsome form. Children raised on Merita Bread have a hard time understanding how anything they crave so much can still be so good for them. Its uncanny ability to solve such problems of health and appetite is what makes Merita the fastest-selling bread in the South. Switch to The Lone Ranger's favorite bread today—serve abounding energy to your family in tantalizing slices of Merita Bread.

'KIDNAP' VICTIMS FOUND ON CAMPUS

Freshmen Abductors Flee Valdosta Police.

VALDOSTA, Ga., Feb. 26.—(P) A prank by five University of Florida freshmen gave Valdosta police a pre-dawn flurry of excitement today.

Informed a group of men were binding two others and threatening them with knives, police found two Florida sophomores, identified as Hinto Baker and John Hansen, who reported they had been seized at Gainesville, Fla., Sunday and brought here to be dumped on the Georgia State Woman's College campus.

Police Captain Lonnie Murphy said the freshmen escaped. He added they would have faced charges of disorderly conduct had they not outdistanced police.

HEARING IS CALLED IN PIPELINE CASE

Opponents and Proponents Asked To Testify by Highway Board.

The State Highway Board yesterday called a public hearing for March 6 on the application of the Southeastern Pipeline Company for permit to build a pipeline beneath the roads under control of the State Highway Department.

Commissioner Lawton L. Patten, speaking for the board, said he and his colleagues, Jim L. Gillis and Herman H. Watson, hoped to complete the hearing in two days but added that everyone who desired to be heard would be permitted to address the board.

"We want to hear from all opponents as well as all proponents of this proposition," Commissioner Patten said. "We have set aside March 6 and 7 for the hearing but will give the people interested additional time if necessary."

Attorney General Ellis Arnall recently ruled that the highway board could grant permission for the construction of the pipeline if it found that the project did not interfere with the safety of those using the roads or the general use of the highways.

The Southeastern Pipeline Company plans to construct a line from Port St. Joe, Fla., to Chattanooga to pipe gasoline from the St. Joe wharf to Atlanta, Chattanooga and other cities along the route. It is understood that construction of the line is being opposed by the railroads as well as the cities of Savannah and Brunswick. Gasoline is one of the leading commodities shipped both by rail and truck from the two coastal cities.

ELECTION DATE CHANGED.

GREENSBORO, Ga., Feb. 26.—Qualification of candidates closed today after the Greene county Democratic executive committee had changed the primary date from March 15 to March 27. The registration lists will close March 13.

Takes Trade Fight to the Senate

Heartened by house approval of a bill extending his reciprocal trade program, Secretary of State Cordell Hull is shown as he appeared yesterday to carry on his fight in the senate. He told that body's finance committee the program would vitally improve world conditions when peace comes.

HULL CITES REPORT OF G. O. P. ON TRADE

Secretary Tells Senators Treaty Program Extension Would Aid Peace.

WASHINGTON, Feb. 26.—(P)—Secretary Hull, whose trade agreements program has come under fire from many Republican congress members, cited in support of it today the recent report of the Republican program committee.

As a witness before the senate finance committee, the secretary of state reiterated his belief that the agreements would help point the way to a better world, once the European war ends.

Senator Lodge, Republican, Massachusetts, asked him to explain how, if liberal trade policies brought peace, England became engaged in many wars.

Hull said he could not reply more succinctly to that than the Republican program committee had done in its report. That committee reported, he said, that policies which prevented nations from obtaining raw materials in peaceful trade led them to seize materials by force.

The senate committee is considering house-approved legislation to extend the act.

CAMP'S TREATY VOTE PLACED IN RECORD

WASHINGTON, Feb. 26.—(P)—By unanimous consent of the house, the Congressional Record was corrected today to include the name of Representative Camp, Democrat, Georgia, among those voting Friday night for continuance of the reciprocal trade program. Camp's name had been omitted.

Representative Peterson, Democrat, Georgia, said newspaper accounts did not show his vote, although the Congressional Record tallied him correctly as favoring the resolution.

A new million-dollar company in Japan will gather waste materials.

INDUSTRIAL PIONEERS TO RECEIVE PLAQUE

NEW YORK, Feb. 26.—(P)—The selection of 28 American scientists and industrialists, including Henry Ford and Orville Wright, as "modern pioneers of the frontiers of industry" was announced today by the National Association of Manufacturers. They will be presented silver plaques at a dinner tomorrow night.

The 28 were chosen, the association said, by an independent committee of six scientists, headed by Dr. Karl T. Compton, president of the Massachusetts Institute of Technology, "for their part in creating new jobs and better standards of living."

GOVERNOR BAILEY ATTACKS NEW DEAL

Charges Subversive Practices to Appointed 'Quack Politicians.'

FORT LAUDERDALE, Fla., Feb. 26.—(P)—Governor Bailey, of Arkansas, told the Southern Governors' Conference today appointed "quack politicians" were trying to break down the nation's system of government by hammering away with subversive practices.

Other governors taking part in the conference activities were Frank M. Dixon, of Alabama; Rivers, of Georgia; Burnett R. Maybank, of South Carolina, and Fred P. Cone, of Florida.

Pleading for purification of national policy, Governor Bailey declared the administration had attempted no cure for the nation's economic ills, and had done nothing but apply palliatives.

At today's session, the chief executives also decided to give material aid in obtaining federal assistance in financing completion of the Blue Ridge railroad, construction of which was started prior to the War Between the States. The railroad connects Tennessee, North Carolina and South Carolina.

Man, 51, Dies in Plunge From Hotel's Sixth Floor

Former Stamp Dealer Leaves Despondent Note to Brother, Professor at Emory University; Coroner Will Hold Inquest Today.

Kirke M. Hart, 51, of 894 Highland avenue, was killed yesterday afternoon when he jumped or fell from the sixth floor of an apartment hotel, landing on top of an adjoining garage.

Suicidal intent was indicated in a note which the former civil service commission employee of Washington, D. C., left his brother, Dr. Charles R. Hart, a professor at Emory University and a resident of the hotel.

Despondent Letter.

Ordered to Atlanta last October because of ill health, Mr. Hart was forced to leave his wife and daughter, Miss Louise Randolph Hart, in Washington. According to the note, which also directed Dr. Hart to insurance papers and annuities, Mr. Hart said, "Life without Lucy and Louise and being of help to them is useless."

The dead man's coat and an empty poison bottle were found at the end of the sixth floor hallway, in front of an open window by Dr. Hart and the hotel manager, James D. deJarnette. It is believed he wrote the note and left it on a hotel dresser while his brother was sleeping late in the afternoon.

For a few months after coming to Atlanta Mr. Hart operated a philatelic shop at 221 Peachtree Arcade. Although living on Highland avenue, he took his meals each night with his brother at the hotel.

Worried Over Health.

Suffering a nervous breakdown during the summer, doctors ordered Mr. Hart to Atlanta. Unable to bring his wife and daughter along, he worried over the fact and over his health, according to those who knew him.

BIBLE COURSE URGED FOR SCHOOLS IN ROME

Special to THE CONSTITUTION.

ROME, Ga., Feb. 26.—The Federated Council of Church Women here is sponsoring a movement to obtain adoption of Bible study as an elective course in the Rome public school system, according to Mrs. Ross Bosworth, president of the council.

A committee headed by Mrs. J. R. Hornady, of the council, and another group from the Rome Ministerial Association, with the Rev. Roy Hulan as chairman, are working on the project, which was set as the main objective of the council for 1940.

FLORIDA WATCHMAN

ABDUCTED, RELEASED

MIAMI, Fla., Feb. 26.—(P)—A state-wide police alarm was broadcast today for three unidentified men who entered a garage here and drove away with a car in which they carried a bound and gagged night watchman, Thomas Chaloner, to Deerfield before releasing him. They robbed him of $18 before dumping him out of the vehicle.

ATLANTA, GA., FEBRUARY 27, 1940.

For Direct Relief—Only

Several local organizations have suggested, with approval, that a three-mill tax be levied in Fulton county, the proceeds to be used only for direct relief of the penniless unemployed.

According to the revenues of 1939, when a one-mill tax raised a total of $298,429.61, this three-mill levy should raise almost $900,000. Which would provide about $12 monthly for each of the 6,267 individuals now on the direct relief rolls.

This, of course, does not allow anything for administrative expense, which would probably reduce the monthly allotment per individual to approximately $10. Nor does it take into account the cases which are classified as employable and which, under the extreme financial stringency of the relief situation for the past year, have received little, if any, direct relief. Nevertheless, the mere fact they are classified as employable does not make hunger and want any easier to bear, when they can't find jobs.

If a three-mill tax is necessary to prevent, in Fulton county, that starvation which is so little known as malnutrition and which is the cause for a high percentage of free hospital cases, if it is necessary to halt the spread of tuberculosis that feeds on lowered physical resistance, if it is necessary to keep some sort of shelter over shivering women and children in winter time, then the taxpayers of the county will never begrudge it.

But, before it is levied, the taxpayers will, quite properly, demand that there be some adequate guarantee that the entire revenue from the three-mill tax go, as intended, to direct relief.

In the past, as disclosed by recent articles and analyses of county and relief finances which have appeared in The Constitution, only a portion of the tax-raised relief money has been spent on direct relief. The balance has, either directly or indirectly, gone into the general county treasury to be used for any and all of the various activities of the county government.

In 1939, although one mill was levied for relief, less than one-third of the revenue raised by that mill tax went to direct relief. Such a situation must not be permitted again.

Neither by the subterfuge of shifting appropriations formerly made out of general tax funds onto the special relief tax, nor by direct reduction of the relief revenue, must helpless unemployed and hungry folks of Fulton county be again penalized.

If the revenue received from the usual tax sources is not sufficient to meet other county expenses, the county commission and grand jury should so announce and lay the case for an increase in the regular levy before the taxpayers and the voters. If more money is essential, it should be openly provided. If analysis of expenditures shows that the budget can be balanced through the practice of economy, it should be so balanced.

But, when the taxpayers accept an extra levy, either one mill as in 1939 or three mills, as now proposed, for relief purposes, that levy should be devoted, without direct or indirect deduction of a single penny, to relief.

Geography in Flux

An American map-publishing house, it is announced, is now providing weekly map service for public schools. New maps of Europe and other portions of the world are received by each subscribing school every Monday, with the fast-changing national frontiers brought up to date each week.

Such a report emphasizes the difficulties of geography in a world such as that in which we live today. Imagine the problems of the teacher who must revise her lessons and correct her textbooks every time the embattled Finns retreat before Russian hordes or each time some bully nation takes a new bite from the territory of a small and helpless neighbor.

It used to be difficult enough to earn honor marks in geography in those former days when maps were reasonably stable. But the modern schoolboy, or girl, should be, insofar as geography is concerned, at least, an object of pity.

Imagine finding that you failed in your examination because your answer would have been correct, one week ago, but is erroneous according to the new map tacked on the classroom wall only two days ago!

All Aboard—Not for Bermuda

Although the chief censor's office at Bermuda, as well as the British home government, has denied that story of the seizure of United States mail off the trans-Atlantic Clipper at bayonets' point, Pan-American Airways announces it will adopt the simplest of all means of avoiding future clashes with the British over trans-Atlantic air mail.

After March 15 American planes bound for Europe will not stop at Bermuda or any other British-owned territory. They will fly from this country to the Azores and thence to Lisbon, eastern terminal of the route.

Two factors were considered when the Bermuda stop was first inaugurated last fall. First, winter weather conditions made it advisable to shorten the hop as much as possible, as forecasts could not be made, at that time, as far ahead as desired. That difficulty has been overcome by the American government, which has stationed two vessels in mid-Atlantic in the service of the Weather Bureau.

The second reason for the Bermuda stop was the urging of the trade development board of the colony. Thus an important move for the advancement of a British colony, achieved after much effort by the businessmen of that colony, is rendered null and void by the unnecessarily stubborn attitude of British officialdom. Whether that "bayonet-point" story is true or not.

Which stubbornness has a strangely familiar odor in regard to official stupidity the world around.

In his G. O. P. prospectus, Glenn Frank is for tossing out various New Deal innovations and giving Republican names to the others. It would be nice, he thinks, to have Herbert Boulder known again as Hoover.

One Handicap Overcome

Conquering of the problem of television relay, announced on Thursday last, removes one of the two principal obstacles which have stood in the way of nation-wide television broadcasting. The previous inability to relay the television broadcasts from one station to another has limited the range to the visual horizon, thus preventing the "hook-ups" which have made possible the chain radio programs that reach all over the nation.

Students of television and its commercial possibilities, however, have found another handicap, if television is to be financed by the same method with which radio broadcasting has been financed in this country. That is, by commercial advertising.

It is reported that possible commercial sponsors, in many instances, have said television will not, they believe, be a satisfactory advertising medium. This is because it is far easier for the individual witnessing a television broadcast on his private radio screen, at home, to turn his eyes away when advertising flashes on, than it is for him to "dial out" the sponsor-plugs on an ordinary radio program, or to close his ears.

Radio advertising is frequently irritating, but the average hearer accepts it because he knows it is what makes possible most of the best programs on the air. He listens to it with resignation, though usually without much attention, because he knows it will shortly be followed by something he wants to hear.

But he doesn't have to look at a televised blurb for any commercial product on his television screen. The voice of the announcer may be in his ears, but unless he watches the screen, the picture of the product does not have to be within his vision.

Advertisers, somewhat naturally, do not believe televised blurbs can be made so attractive that any appreciable proportion of the public will keep eyes focused on their pictured product-stories.

Perhaps, however, the backers of television will find some other means of financing programs than commercial sponsorships. If they do, they will win the thanks of all prospective owners of televised reception sets.

Jane Ardens in Swedish

Jane Arden, that girl reporter of the comic strips, has incited skepticism for years, among working newspapermen and newspaperwomen. It just didn't seem possible that any gal reporter could, in the first place, enjoy such consistently breath-taking assignments and, in the second place, escape the lure of the stage with two such lovely reasons for stardom as those limbs that wave so beautifully in the air, so frequently. She seems to have no failings as a newspaperwoman and is certainly perfectly equipped for a leg job. (In the city room parlance, a leg job is that of the reporter who works outside the office).

Now, however, the mystery is solved. Jane Arden must be Swedish. For William L. White, who has been writing the best human-interest stuff of any war correspondent, devoted his story of Monday last to a eulogy of the Swedish girl reporters who have reached Helsinki to cover the Finnish-Russ war and who would, if the authorities would permit, go to the front lines in the interest of their respective newspapers.

True, Mr. White makes but casual reference to their professional ability. He speaks approvingly on this feature, but it is plain he is biased by the pulchritude of his subjects. Then he gets into what is evidently the principal effect of these girls—as far as he is concerned. "They will melt the rims of your spectacles just to look at them—" he writes.

The life of a war correspondent is hard, and dangerous. But, it would seem, not all the danger is from the artillery on the far side of no-man's land. There must be a certain hazard in the presence of so much blonde dynamite in press headquarters.

THE CAPITAL PARADE

By JOSEPH ALSOP AND ROBERT KINTNER.

ACCENT ON MEDIOCRITY. WASHINGTON, Feb. 26.—If there is one really discouraging aspect of American politics, it is the accent on mediocrity. The ideal public servant, under our system, is a man to whom there are no positive objections, with just the extra touch of vaudeville artist or chautauqua lecturer which is needed to achieve celebrity.

If real ability had a higher value, there would have been tremendous excitement about the recent Saturday Evening Post article in which New York's Park Commissioner Robert Moses gave the Republican and Democratic presidential candidates a genially dispassionate going over. Moses, without any question at all, is the Republican party's ablest public servant, and probably one of the two or three finest public servants in the world.

Al Smith's adviser (for though a Republican, Moses has always cared little for partisanship) he magnificently reorganized the government of the most populous state in the Union. He was the real author of many of the social reforms which made New York a center of liberal hopes in the twenties. In his report on the New York state banking system, he produced what Walter Lippmann rightly judged to be the most distinguished public paper of our generation. And in these last years he has been hard at work changing the face of the richest city in the world, giving the taxpayers $150 of value for every $1 of expenditure, and using a combination of good taste and far-sighted good sense so rare as to be almost unheard of.

MOSES SAYS. In his Post article, Moses was most interesting when he analyzed his own party's leading candidates. He says:

Of Senator Robert A. Taft, that he is "steady, well-balanced, reliable, and undramatic, with great appeal to millions who are tired of radio charm; a little heavy and cold, with a mind fine but pedestrian, yet inherently hearty, comfortable and genuinely American."

Of Senator Arthur H. Vandenberg, that he has "a first-rate record of wide knowledge, enormously influential friends in congress and for want of a better word, presidential stature. But in his attitude toward the neutrality act, he seemed to be actuated more by professional dislike of the President than by careful consideration of the country's welfare."

Of Thomas E. Dewey, that he has a grave "weakness, lying in the fact, which cannot well be argued or disputed, that he has no manifest experience or probable qualification for the job."

Moses' dislike for Dewey should perhaps be somewhat discounted, as he heartily detests the young gang-buster. Yet, it is an extremely severe criticism of what politicians lovingly call the "American way" that Bob Moses' remarks on his party and its personalities have not been made the subject of the most widespread comment.

REPUTE OF SERVICE. The worst of it is that the country as a whole has little chance to benefit by the abilities which have been so valuable to the people of New York. Moses has both a small independent fortune and a violently independent spirit. He is rarely loved but always somewhat nervously admired by men whose administrations he joins.

For example, his work as New York park commissioner is responsible for at least half Mayor F. H. La Guardia's amazing political success. Moses' parks, every one of the millions of citizens of New York have felt a tangible, completely delightful result of La Guardia's mayoralty. But whenever the effervescent mayor attempts to effervescence into Moses' park system, Moses' response is to announce that his resignation is on the way to the city hall. That brings La Guardia around immediately, for he knows Moses' value to him.

In part, here is a man, born modestly rich, who specifically trained himself for the public service, who has repeatedly shown an extraordinary talent for it. And because he is independent-minded the chances are heavily against his being called to Washington in the next Republican administration. If any candidate would promise to hand over to Moses the relief problem, or the problem of government reorganization, or any other of the major problems now plaguing us, he would gain hours of sleep and peace of mind. Moses would handle them at first hand. Unhappily, however, the reputation of great public service is not strong enough to force any candidate to be sensible.

SILHOUETTES

By RALPH T. JONES.

A Raven Pays a Call.

You remember, in our continued story of the man who tried to solve his city's relief problem by following the precepts of Christ, we had reached the place where he had accepted the responsibility of one penniless and hungry family himself.

So he listened as the minister of the mill village church told him the approximate size and physical characteristics of the father of the family he would help. Then he bought a suit of clothes, shoes and other necessities. To do this with him and went to the humble little shack of his human responsibilities. Knocked on the door and there was no answer.

He knocked a second time, and a door opened without result. At last, however, he heard footsteps inside the house, the door opened and a man faced him.

"Are you Mr. —?" asked the visitor, using the name that had been given him.

"Yes," replied the man in the doorway. "That's me."

"Well," continued the visitor, "My name is So-and-So. I heard you and your family were having quite a hard time, since the mill closed. I believe in the teachings of Jesus and decided He would have me share what I have with you. I've got a comfortable home and an income. So I came around to see what you need."

The eyes of the man in the doorway distended in astonishment. He was silent for a minute. Then he said, almost in a whisper:

"You come in?"

So the visitor walked inside.

These Are Yours.

He handed the package of clothing he had brought to the man.

"These are for you," he said.

"I had to guess your size, but I think they'll fit. If they don't, I'll get you a new suit. Sell 'em, or anything. They're yours, anyway."

The man of the little house wore only a rumpled, light-weight suit. And it was a cold winter day. Before he spoke again he had to conquer a choke in his voice and wipe a mistiness away from his eyes.

"Mister," he said finally, "do you know what I was doing when you knocked? I was in the kitchen at the back, with my little daughter. We haven't coal, but I'd found enough scrapwood around the neighborhood to have a little fire in the kitchen stove. We were praying. I was kinder telling the Lord that I'd come to the end of my tether. Couldn't go on no further, without help. Couldn't get a job, or anything. I'd even told Him we had nothing in the house but a couple slices of bread, half a cup of coffee and a smidgen of flour. I'd told Him if He had any ravens He could send us, now was the time to send 'em."

"Well," grinned the visitor, "perhaps I'm a raven."

So he gave the man $5 for food and told him to call on him, whenever it was convenient, once a week and he'd see that he had sufficient to eat. And that he stood ready to do anything else he could to help his new friend get back on his economic feet.

Two Weeks Later.

The man didn't call at the office of his sponsor that week. The week following, however, he was there.

"I didn't come last week," he said, "because there was no need. I found three days work, at $2 a day, and that was enough for my needs. This week it has been raining, though, and that prevented outdoor work. And we do need a little help."

"How much? Anything from $250 to $750," responded the other.

"Two dollars will be enough," was the quiet response. What's more, that's all he would take.

And that was the only call for help that was needed. Today the man who had been jobless and hungry and penniless is once more economically independent. He and his family found a way to go back to the little country community they had left years before and found there a niche and a chance to make a decent living.

The two men, though, are still warm friends and they often recall, together, that day of years ago when one had prayed for success in his dire need and the other, as he still loves to call himself, "a raven."

"You did something more than bring clothes and food, when you called on me that day," explains the erstwhile beneficiary. "I thought I'd done my best, but you injected new hope, new confidence. Perhaps it showed in my manner, my face. Anyway, when I went job hunting the next day I got a job—as you know—and I only had to ask your help once more."

Tomorrow, by your leave, I'll try to wind up this series of columns dealing with the relief story, by drawing what seems to me to be a self-evident moral lesson or reaction. Have patience, please.

Twenty-Five Years Ago Today.

From the news columns of Saturday, February 27, 1915: "Manager Bill Smith, of the Crackers, announced Friday morning that he had placed the order with the railroad companies to send tickets to the ball players who will receive try-outs on the Crackers this spring."

And Fifty Years Ago.

From the news column of Thursday, February 27, 1890: "George Hope says the use of his name in connection with the police commissioner's office is entirely unauthorized."

Nazi Rolling Stock.

The Berlin district office of the Federal Railways canceled 76 passenger trains from and to Berlin in order to free men and rolling stock for increased freight transportation, especially coal. During the present cold wave a noticeable shortage of coal was encountered in the German capital. Authorities claimed that supplies were plentiful, but that transportation difficulties had brought about the shortage.

FAIR ENOUGH

By WESTBROOK PEGLER.

Must Be Sacrifice. NEW YORK, Feb. 26. When I start operations as Bishop Pegler under the amendment to the Constitution making religion compulsory and atheism a felony I aim to organize a sort of clerical board of trade to divide up the new business and avoid any such unseemly scramble as the one which has disturbed the realm of labor organizations under the Wagner act. Here congress gave the labor organizers a marvelous power of compulsion over millions of subjects, complete with a taxing privilege and tax immunity for their own treasuries. The leaders were prepared to handle the rush and consequently they fell to fighting among themselves for members and dues.

My idea is to take a census of all sects now existing and all the people who do not belong to any church and divide the new business peacefully under the eeky-meeky-miney-no system. Or, if anyone prefers the bibby-bibby-sibby-sab system, that will be all right with Bishop Pegler. I am all for peace and co-operation just so I get my share of the new business peacefully under the eeky-meeky-miney-no system. Or, if anyone prefers the bibby-bibby-sibby-sab system, that will be all right with Bishop Pegler. I am all for peace and co-operation just so I get my share of the new business peacefully under the eeky-meeky-miney-no system. Or, if anyone prefers the bibby-bibby-sibby-sab system, that will be all right with Bishop Pegler. I am all for peace and co-operation just so I get my share of the new business peacefully under the eeky-meeky-miney-no system.

Legal Status As to just what

100 Per Cent. a valid, organized religion of the present writing, here again we must be a trifle arbitrary for the sake of the general good. The church, in which I have the financial good luck to hold an appointment as bishop, is not very prominent, but like some rather obscure no-account unions which were existing in a state of suspended animation by virtue of mildewed old union charters, when the Wagner act came in, our legal status is 100 per cent. Some of those union charters were clean forgotten when the Wagner act came in, but they have been documents of fabulous value from then on. People just had to join those unions under those charters and pay fees, dues and assessments to the individuals who happened to own them. A church charter will be a gold mine under the religious compulsion amendment.

I understand that the Rev. Father Coughlin favors the Franco way, and I am glad to say that this way is okay with the Right Rev. Bishop Pegler of some church in Colorado. I am not yet sure of the name of this church, but I was appointed a bishop thereof several years ago, and I will fill in the blank when I find my diploma, which is somewhere around. Under the requirements of the Franco way, all marriages must be performed by religious authority, and it takes no genius to see what that will mean to Bishop Pegler when he gets his share of the 70,000,000 unorganized Americans under the eeky-meeky or ibby-bibby-sibby system.

Some of Say he gets only half

The Take, a million of them about 100 other qualified clerics at present holding credentials in this Colorado church, for it is really a very small cult. Bishop Pegler will get his cut of the marriage business at anywhere from $2 up to whatever the traffic will bear, with time and a half for eloquence after quitting time. He will get his regular grid for membership stamps on compulsory church cards. He will get collections to support his radio program, compulsory subscriptions to his church paper and compulsory funeral fees, and he can speculate in the silver market while raiding the market through propaganda. And he need never pay any attention to the income tax, because churches are immune under the law. And any one who interferes with him will be a dirty atheist Communist, subject to arrest on sight and life imprisonment in a concentration camp.

You may quote Bishop Pegler as declaring that if there is a division of the new business he will be 100 per cent for the Franco way and an ardent supporter of Father Coughlin. It gives Bishop Pegler a terrible start to think that he is laughing when he unexpectedly received his appointment as bishop of the church in Colorado and was going to tear it up. It goes to show that you should never throw anything away.

ONE WORD MORE

By RALPH MC GILL.

MR. WELLES AND PEACE. Men cry peace and there is no peace. There may not be any peace for two or three years. Or it may come with the spring. There just isn't any telling.

I believe there will be some telling, however, when Mr. Sumner Welles comes back from his European journey and tells all into the ears of Mr. Franklin D. Roosevelt and Mr. Secretary Hull.

Mr. Welles reported yesterday from Rome that he had had "very gratifying and helpful conversations" with Mussolini and Foreign Minister Count Galeazzo Ciano, the son-in-law of Il Duce.

There naturally is much interest in Mr. Welles among the European nations. The Germans especially will be keen to see and hear him even though they may be expected to appear very cool and collected about the whole thing.

Mr. Welles is a career man and is about the No. 2 man in the State Department. He is an expert on Latin-American affairs, but has plenty of ability on any angle of foreign affairs.

I will wager Mr. Welles comes back with some real information. And that it will have a profound effect on our foreign policy. That policy is, of course, pro-Allied. It will either be more so or less so when Mr. Welles has had his look and returned to tell it.

MR. WELLES AND MR. MACHADO. I know Mr. Welles and while I have written this piece about him before, maybe it will do again. In August of 1935 I was in Cuba trying to write some pieces about the revolution which was about ready to break open at the seams.

Gerardo Machado, the President of Cuba, was out at his hacienda most of the time, protected by troops and barbed-wire barricades. Not to mention a few machine guns. Now and then he did come into the palace in Havana.

Mr. Welles had promised he would ease me into the palace for an interview the very next time Mr. Machado who was a tough hombre, came to town. There had been many number of people killed and others had just disappeared from the old fort in the harbor. When some hands and wrists, with the cuff links still in pieces of the shiny metal, were found in the stomachs of some sharks fishermen brought in, it was assumed they had got there by sheer accident. The Machado government might have slid them down the old chute the Spaniards had put there centuries before.

They hated Machado, and with reason. They called him "The Butcher" and "The Beast" and other names even more unpleasant. One day the revolution seemed about to boil over. It was August and just a few days before, on August 12, Machado was ousted by his army under the surprise command of a former sergeant, Fulgencio Batista.

That morning the veterans of the war with Spain had demonstrated and I had watched the police and soldiers break it up, smashing some of the men with clubs and some with the butts of rifles.

That afternoon I went to see Machado. Mr. Welles was waiting when I had shown my pass and got through the machine-gun guarded gate and up the stairways to the palace floor where the President waited.

THE COOLEST MAN IN THE WORLD. This was August in Havana. The windows were closed. The drapes were drawn. The electric lights were, of course, going full blast. Here and there an electric fan whirled in the air.

I met Mr. Welles in the outer room, adjacent to the Machado office. My soft shirt was a wet rag about my neck. It stuck to chest and back. So did the back of my linen coat. It was sweltering. And there stood Mr. Welles with a hard collar about his neck. It was immaculate and as stiff and neat as if just from the launderer's iron.

He had been standing firm, saying to Machado that, in his opinion, the only solution was for Machado to quit. I was excited just being there. Mr. Welles was cool as a bank president refusing a loan. He waited while I went in.

It was not much of an interview. Machado was just a somewhat fat, uneasy man with a peck-marked face. Soldiers paced back of us and the interpreter and I kept our hands on the table. It was a very poor interview. Not much had been expected. The lid was about to blow.

In that room the heat was terrific. I came out almost as wet as an ice man who has carried 100 pounds of ice up six flights of stairs and found no one at home.

Mr. Welles was cool and collected. I looked at that hard linen collar and put him down then and there as a gentleman who knew his way around and one who wouldn't get rattled and lose his equilibrium no matter what happened.

When Mr. Welles comes back I think he will know what we may expect.

It Is Foolish To Look For Trouble, But More Foolish Not To Prepare For It

By ROBERT QUILLLEN.

We are told by earnest and responsible people that organized propaganda is now doing its utmost to draw us into the European war. No doubt it is true, in a sense, yet it isn't likely that any person in authority has said to another: "Let us now organize our propaganda for the purpose of dragging America into our war." Things aren't done that way.

In any case, propaganda has little effect now, for Americans want no part of the war. They had no part in starting it. They had no share in the blunders that led up to it. They feel no responsibility for it. It simply isn't their war.

Yet no matter how carefully Americans avoid the war, it will not avoid them. There are certain hard facts known to all literate and informed citizens, to which we must somehow adjust

Latin Cities All Are Alike, Spalding, Charlie Conclude

Steamship Company Politely Tells Two Newspapermen 'Perhaps Tomorrow,' But Tomorrow Never Comes in Quito; Train Seems To Be Solution.

(Still in Quito, waiting reservation on a northbound steamer, Jack Spalding meets Charlie, who is "a newspaperman, looking around and writing about what I see." Both are agreed that Latin cities are pretty much alike and there is little use to look at any more. They scratch flea bites and just wait.)

By JACK SPALDING, Staff Correspondent.

QUITO, Ecuador, Tuesday, Feb. 20.—(By Mail)—"Ho-hum," yawned Charlie. "Ho-hum," we yawned.

"Now how in the devil," Charlie asked, "are we ever going to get out of here?" We counseled patience. Every morning for the last 10 mornings we had gone together to the steamship agency trying to make reservations on a northbound ship.

BUMS TO BE VISITED BY CENSUS TAKERS

Floating Population To Be Counted on Night of April 8.

Frowsy old bums in flop-houses, tramps in hobo jungles, park-bench sleepers, tin-can tourists in trailer camps, shanty boatmen whose floating homes are on the rivers, Mr. and Mrs. America, who travel and live in hotels—all the nation's great drifting population will receive the special attention of the census taker on the night of April 8.

On that date the 120,000 head-counters and question-askers who begin the 16th decennial census on April 1 will turn from their house-to-house, farm-to-farm canvass to catch, in one 10 or 12-hour period, all the country's thousands of drifters whose homes are wherever they hang their hat.

It is one of the most difficult phases of the census and one of the most important, according to Harvey B. Mitchell, of Washington, who this week is directing a conference of district supervisors and area managers from eight southern states here.

Purpose of the conference is to teach these men the complicated reporting procedure by which the census figures are to be counted. The area managers and district supervisors, in turn, are to teach the procedure to the enumerators in their districts.

Unimportant, but interesting is the fact that under the rules some living persons may not be counted, and some dead persons must be recorded, Mr. Mitchell pointed out.

The census is taken as of April 1, the day of its beginning. Persons alive on that date, though they may have died before the enumerators reached their households, must be recorded. Babies born after April 1 may not be counted.

about Colombia. After Peru and Ecuador, I'm thinking, maybe that Colombia—

"Will be a waste of time," we broke in.

"How did you know?" Charlie laughed.

"Waste of Time."

"Started in Colombia and planned to go through Ecuador into Peru and then home," we said.

"And after Colombia and Ecuador you think Peru will be just a waste of time," Charlie finished for us.

"Right," we said.

"Right," said Charlie, "waiter, another beer."

The fleas came out of their hiding places in the upholstery and fed upon us. Outside a cold rain fell on the streets of Quito.

"Look out the window," Charlie said, "and tell me what you see."

We saw a plaza, some seraway palms, a monument to a revolution, a cathedral tower, blank white walls, taxis of ancient vintage, arcaded shops, a smattering of wrought iron and behind it all, a glooming, unpleasant looking mountain half veiled in gray clouds.

"It could almost be Lima," Charlie began.

"Or Bogota, or Medellin, or Popayan," we concluded.

"Latin cities," Charlie said with a flourish of his stick, are—

"All variations on the same theme," we finished for him.

"Right," said Charlie.

(In Jack Spalding's next article about Quito he tells of his and Charlie's reaction to the ringing of the bells in the tower of Quito's Cathedral—his realistic, Charlie's romantic. Meanwhile, both have decided to quit Quito immediately regardless of their inability to obtain passage on a steamer.)

Reds' Propaganda Gives Finns Laugh, Writes White

Defenders Urged To Kill Their Officers and Desert To Russian Army; Lieutenant Calm, Says His Men Know What They Are Fighting For.

By WILLIAM L. WHITE, Special Correspondent.

SOMEWHERE IN FINLAND—(By Mail)—The objectives of this battery were three Russian batteries somewhere off in the darkness along the horizon. The captain called out the signals in Swedish, and when he finally shouted "skoot!" all four guns barked almost at once. If the fire had been uneven, the Russians, turning their heads in the direction of the sound, could locate the battery by the flash of the last gun. Then they reloaded and fired, and then once again. Each time all four guns were nicely timed. Then we went down into the dugout to wait for the Russian answer. It came a few minutes later, but did not last long, and while most of their shots were placed on the hill, only one landed close enough to shake the dugout.

We waited a little more and came up, where the observer told us our firing must have been very good, since the Russian reply came from only one battery, as he could see by the flashes, and the other two Russian batteries further along the horizon must have been put out of commission.

Shoot at Nothing.

After this we walked on down the hill to the lines, and then for about a mile through the front trenches, which were very quiet except off to the south, you could hear the Russian artillery. The Finns said sometimes they seemed to shoot at nothing at all. Then we turned off a little down a communication trench to our dugout, getting into it just at midnight. Most of the soldiers were asleep.

January Gas Tax YIELDS $1,613,009

Amount Is $250,000 Below December's Record-Breaking Collections.

January collections of Georgia's six-cent gasoline tax totaled $1,613,009.25, State Auditor Zach Arnold reported yesterday. The State highway department draws $1,037,864.18 of this amount.

The collections were off more than $250,000 from December's record-breaking $1,868,623.03, and slightly below receipts for January a year ago of $1,630,707.37.

The fund was divided among four agencies besides the highway department, including counties $259,466.04; school equalization fund $267,490.77; general treasury $40,365.56; and Revenue Department (for collection costs) $7,823.10.

January kerosene tax collections were $29,471.95, of which the Department of Education receives all but $147.

Arnold disclosed distribution of $20,427.68 in equalization funds to county and school districts.

County payments included Clarke $899.26; Colquitt $3,095.67; Crisp $1,289.50; DeKalb $3,333.25; Dougherty $414.83; Floyd $8,303.40; Fulton $3,044.67; Laurens $3,332.38; Lowndes $2,211.25; Muscogee $1,019.75; Spaulding $1,457.67; Thomas $3,042.08; Tift $2,150.08.

GOOD MORNING -- By Louie D. Newton

THE ALAMO.

Will Rogers wrote: "I always told you there was just three towns in the whole of America that was different—New Orleans, Frisco and San Antonio. Each has got something that even the most persistent chamber of commerce can't standardize." And they told me down in San Antonio that Will Rogers spent much of his time on every visit to San Antonio at the Alamo. I guess everybody does, who is fortunate enough to visit that interesting city.

The Alamo is not only the "Altar of Texas Liberty," but a veritable shrine of American valor.

"Thermopylae had her messenger of defeat: The Alamo had none," reads a sign on the south side of the Alamo monument.

With the exception of Moses Rose, who climbed the wall in the crucial hour of the final siege, and fled to the Zuber home to tell the story, all the men—182 of them—met death for the sake of liberty.

Commanded by Lieutenant-Colonel William B. Travis, aided by Bowie and David Crockett, those valiant Americans chose to die for liberty rather than flee to safety. One must go to the Alamo to feel the surge of their gallant spirit. I wish every school boy and girl in the United States might go there—might walk through that shrine—might read the names of the men on the ancient walls—might look into the portraits of Travis and Bowie and Crockett—might read their last words!

It was March 6, 1836, when Travis realized that the long-hoped-for aid could not reach them—that the hour of destiny was upon them. They could not see the soldiers of Santa Anna creeping through the cottonwood trees—thousands of them—with their bayonets and guns and knives. Travis ordered the 182 men to stand single file. He drew a line, and said:

"All who will stay here with me and die for liberty, step across this line." They leaped to his side.

Colonel Bowie, too ill to stand up, asked four men to set his cot across the line. And then the immortal words of Travis, framed in his own hand upon the wall, made full and final declaration of their purpose to die for liberty.

And they died, but not until they had slain 1,600 Mexican soldiers, but a patrol had just come in which had been out behind the Russian lines on skis, cutting their telephone wires.

These men were drying their socks and they had the radio going. A voice was talking in Finnish and when I asked what the station was, the lieutenant explained that it was the Moscow radio, that this was the propaganda lecture in Finnish, but that presently the musical hour would begin and the soldiers were waiting for this. But he said the propaganda also amused them.

Kill Officers.

I asked him to translate it and he said, talking along with the loudspeaker voice, that the Finnish soldiers should no longer fight the battles of the rich peasants and foreign capitalists, but should kill their officers and desert to the Red Army. This, the lieutenant explained, they always remembered. The leader of the patrol then remarked that just before they had turned back, they had tossed a grenade into the entrance of a Russian dugout; he thought it might be a post of command dugout, it was so unusually well-made.

Sitting for the minute in the command room, the lieutenant pointed out on a field map where we were, and the battery, and the hill and the lake. I asked about the men listening to the Russian propaganda talk telling them to kill their officers, but the lieutenant could see nothing strange in this. He said they all knew why they were fighting and the Russians could not change it by anything they said. He went on to say that his men came from a seaport town, and were Social Democrats—many had been Communists. "But I could not ask for better men," he said.

TRAFFIC DEATH CUT HERE LEADS NATION

Atlanta's Reduction of 51 Per Cent Highest of 22 Cities.

Atlanta, with a traffic fatality reduction of 51 per cent last year, led 22 cities through the nation which have been served by the field staff of the safety division of the International Association of Police Chiefs, it was said yesterday.

The 22 cities, whose police departments had received special training by the division, showed an average reduction of eight per cent in 1939 over 1938, according to Lieutenant F. M. Kreml, director. Cities not served by the division showed a death reduction of but three-tenths per cent.

Second to Atlanta was Memphis with a 34 per cent decrease in traffic deaths while Indianapolis was third with a 31 per cent decline. The average death rate in the 22 cities prior to safety division service was 24.4 deaths per 100,000 per year. After training, it was said, the cities averaged 13.7 deaths per 100,000.

Trenton $1,447.83; and Ware $2,106.17.

City payments included Albany $105.58; Americus $17.10; Cordele $211.38; Dublin $19.88; Moultrie $232.92; Thomasville $80.73; Valdosta $234.08; and Waycross $304.07.

DIVIDED BILLS LIST GEORGIA PROJECTS

Navigation Measure Bears $281,000 for Savannah River.

WASHINGTON, Feb. 26.—(P)—Three omnibus bills to authorize $412,638,600 of federal expenditures for navigation, flood control, and multiple-purpose waterway projects were drafted today by a senate commerce subcommittee.

It divided the big river and harbor bill, which many said could not be passed, into three separate measures. Without recommendation, the subcommittee will submit the three new bills to the full commerce group tomorrow.

The bills were: For flood control, $36,679,500; for navigation, $161,066,100; and for multiple-purpose projects—navigation, flood control and hydro-electric power—$214,893,000.

Among items in the navigation bill were: Savannah harbor, Georgia, $281,000; Apalachicola, Chattahoochee, and Flint rivers, Georgia and Florida, $6,500,000.

Among items in the multiple-purpose bill was: Savannah river and Clark Hill reservoir, Georgia, $28,000,000.

Among items in the flood control bill was: Chattanooga, Texas, and Rossville, Ga., $13,500,000.

Seminole's 'Test' Primary Attracts National Attention

Congress, Welles Held Keys to Third Term Announcement.

By RICHARD L. TURNER.

WASHINGTON, Feb. 26.—(P)—

Despite the agonized pleas of baffled Democrats that President Roosevelt state his attitude toward a third term, there is a strong feeling here that he will not do so until two things have happened.

The first of these is the return of Ambassador Sumner Welles from his European "mission of inquiry," and the other is the adjournment of congress.

Devoting some second thoughts to the fact that Mr. Roosevelt did nothing to keep his name out of the coming Illinois presidential primary, certain Roosevelt supporters express the opinion that in this instance no other course was open to him, regardless of what his ultimate aims may be.

To have approved the entry of his name in Illinois would have been to set the third-term controversy going full blast, producing a spectacular domestic rumpus at a time when Mr. Roosevelt probably wants things at home to have the outward appearance, at least, of sweet and unbroken tranquility. Such an appearance would tend to add weight to any suggestions Welles may have to make to European statesmen concerning future peace.

Prestige is involved, too, where congress is concerned. A statement against a third term before adjournment would make of the New Deal just another second-term administration trying to get along with a congress that knows no future favors are to be expected.

OHIO ELECTIONS TODAY HELD NEW DEAL TEST.

COLUMBUS, Ohio, Feb. 26.—

(P)—A clear-cut New Deal popularity test will be provided in one of Ohio's two special congressional elections tomorrow.

From the six-county 17th district—typical sounding board for strategic Ohio's political cross-currents—Republicans and Democrats expect results to forecast general voting trends in this state, where the Democratic organization is ready to back President Roosevelt for a third term if he desires it.

The other special election, in the 22nd district, found socially-prominent Mrs. Frances Payne Bolton, Cleveland Republican, seeking to become Ohio's first congresswoman. She is opposed by Anthony J. Fieger, only Democrat ever to serve the three-county area's 700,000 people.

and strode across the runway. Photographers flashed bulbs and Jimmy smiled from here to way over there.

Hello's and how are you's flew between the McGehees and young Roosevelt, and Brumby, Jimmy's godson, became the center of attention. Radio announcers clamored and reporters barged right in.

"Are you going to marry your nurse?" stood Jimmy back on his heels.

"I'm not discussing marriage," he replied, grinning.

Washington Keenly Interested in F.D.R.'s Strength After Purge Attempt.

By GLADSTONE WILLIAMS.

Staff Correspondent.

WASHINGTON, Feb. 26.—Returns from the "unofficial" Seminole county preferential primary of Saturday attracted almost as much attention in Washington as they did in Georgia.

Newspapers of the nation's capital gave front-page display to press service reports of the balloting, which showed President Roosevelt to be a one-sided favorite for 1940 Democratic nomination despite liabilities of the third-term issue. Reference to the returns was made also in practically all of the special articles of the day dealing with developments in the Democratic presidential situation.

First "Test" in U. S.

The small Georgia county's unofficial preference primary attracted attention here not only because it marked the first semi-official strawpoll thus far conducted on presidential candidates, but because of the landslide proportions of the Roosevelt "victory."

Most observers and some members of the Georgia delegation in congress were amazed at such a display of the President's strength in Georgia, particularly in view of his unsuccessful purge attempts at Senator George in the state primaries there a year and a half ago.

While the Seminole "primary" was recognized as merely a local incident in Georgia with no binding effect either on the state or the county there was a disposition nevertheless to regard the returns significantly—as offering perhaps an indication of the President's measure of strength in the state.

Georgia Points Way.

Georgia is looked on as a sort of bellwether of sentiment throughout the general southern area, which prompts the reasoning that if Mr. Roosevelt has anything approaching that degree of popularity in Georgia he must occupy a comparable position in other southern states.

The Seminole returns were viewed as offering a discouraging setback to efforts now being made in the state to force a preferential primary in the interest of Vice President John N. Garner's candidacy for the Democratic presidential nomination.

QUICK RECOVERY.

GRiffin, Ga., Feb. 26.—(P)—

J. G. Shepherd, of Thomaston, came to district highway patrol offices here to report theft of his car. As he was leaving the city, Shepherd spied his car at the roadside. He called upon the state highway patrol for help, and a suspect was arrested.

going to get married. Does this mean you are changing your attitude by not denying it now?" came the question.

Jimmy smiled. "I'm not even discussing that," he said.

"What do you think about the third term?" queried a reporter. "I tried to keep them away from out here," put in Mr. McGehee, apologetically. Meanwhile, little Brumby was up in Jimmy's arms and Jimmy's brief case and paraphernalia was being held by a reporter while photographers made pictures.

"I don't know anything about that," Jimmy answered the boiling third-term question. "Nobody's told me anything."

Visited Mother.

"How come you didn't show up Friday afternoon, Friday night or Saturday afternoon when you were scheduled to arrive here?"

"Well," said Jimmy, backing up a set of rolling steps to pose for the cameramen with little Brumby, who was taking everything mighty calm, "I had to go down to Florida to see my mother."

"Does she know whether the President is going to run for a third term?"

"She didn't tell me," the President's eldest son replied—even as he reached inside the plane to get a packet of sweet crackers for little Brumby.

"I did everything I could, I didn't get them out here," put in Mr. McGehee again, once more assuring the President's son that he did not have a thing to do with reporters and photographers meeting Jimmy with such a burst of publicity.

Restless.

By this time, Jimmy was getting restless. Radio announcers were pushing microphones into his whiskers and his every breath was being broadcast to a breathless world.

"I think this is about enough," he said, but that smile characteristic of the Roosevelt never faded a single shade from his tanned countenance.

Still, the question of his latest traffic "incident" hadn't been explained. His chauffeur was arrested on two counts, running a stop light and speeding, Sunday night in Fort Lauderdale, as Jimmy was en route from Golden Beach, where he spent the week end with his mother to Miami. Jimmy put up $35 bond and told the police it was his fault.

"What about the traffic incident, Mr. Roosevelt," asked a reporter.

$35 Returned.

"Oh, I got back the $35 and they turned the chauffeur loose," he said.

Whereupon Mr. McGehee gathered up Mrs. McGehee, Mrs. McGehee gathered up little Brumby, they all gathered up Mr. Roosevelt, who gathered up his briefcase and paraphernalia, and they all departed to the McGehee home on Andrews drive where Mr. Roosevelt was to spend a quiet night resting from his interview.

He's to leave for Washington today.

By the way, Jimmy had time between photographs to add that the movie producing business in which he is engaged in Hollywood is going great guns and he likes it very much.

U. S. Prisoner Here Elected Head of Puerto Rican Party

Convict Is Serving 10 Year Term for Sedition on Island.

Pedro Albizu Campos may be a big shot in his home town of San Juan, Puerto Rico, where yesterday he was elected president of the nationalist party, but here in Atlanta, where he has been a house guest of Uncle Sam for the past three years, he is just a number.

Campos is serving a 10 year sentence for sedition, in connection with the activities of the Nationalist group in Puerto Rico which at one time took the form of an attempt upon the life of Blanton Winship, then governor of Puerto Rico.

Campos is not alone in the pen, seven other insurgent followers having come to join him since his incarceration in 1937 for their part in the attempt to assassinate Governor Winship.

The party, in its annual convention indicated it had abated no whit its disapproval of American rule despite the loss of Campos's leadership.

It adopted resolutions disapproving the militarization of Puerto Rico through establishment of troops and materials at air bases for United States defense, and declared these measures were a continuance of an "illegal invasion" begun more than 40 years ago in the war with Spain.

N. Y. SENATE URGES F. D. R. NOT TO RUN

Republican - Controlled Body Passes Resolution; Spectators Tense.

ALBANY, N. Y., Feb. 26.—(UP) The Republican-controlled senate of New York, President Roosevelt's home state legislature, adopted a resolution tonight memorializing him not to seek a third term.

Action on the resolution came without warning, but word of the move spread rapidly through the capitol where the legislature was conducting its regular Monday night session.

The galleries were tense as the resolution was read. An anti-third term resolution had been expected in the Republican-controlled legislature by its sponsorship by a Democrat surprised both parties.

Tablet Commemorates Free Dental Clinic Here

This bronze plaque, presented to the city last night, will commemorate B'nei B'rith's gift to the city of a completely equipped dental clinic for the white division of Grady hospital. The tablet was accepted at ceremonies last night. Left to right are: T. K. Glenn, chairman of the B'nei B'rith, Dr. J. Moss Beeler, superintendent of the hospital; Councilman Frank Wilson, Mayor Hartsfield, and Dr. I. H. Goldstein, of B'nei B'rith.

For his work in "Stagecoach," Thomas Mitchell was named the best male supporting player of the year. Greer Garson's performance in "Goodbye, Mr. Chips" won her the same honor among actresses.

Newspaper Film Critics was organized in New York last August with Martin, Merle Potter, Minneapolis Times-Tribune; Buck Herzog, Milwaukee Sentinel, and Keith Wilson, Omaha World-Herald, as its steering committee.

Dr. Irving Goldstein, former president of the lodge, the largest Jewish fraternal organization in the world, presented a plaque commemorating the gift. The tablet will be placed above the door of the new clinic. Thomas K. Glenn, chairman of the hospital board, accepted it in behalf of the city.

Dr. Goldstein, sponsor of the project, money for which was raised by private subscriptions among lodge members, paid tribute to the memory of the late Harold Hirsch, who inspired the gift, and to the trustees of Grady, whose 1937 report brought to light the need of a white dental clinic.

Goldstein gave credit to the cooperation of Dr. J. Moss Beeler, superintendent of the hospital, in obtaining WPA aid in the construction of quarters to house the clinic.

Mayor Hartsfield, principal speaker, said that "the thousands of poor who will resort to the clinic will thank you more than I ever can."

Julian Boehm, president of the lodge, spoke in praise of the hospital staff.

Dean R. H. Oppenheimer, of the Emory medical school, also spoke. The new clinic, a five-chair office complete with X-ray room and waiting rooms, will be open for public inspection soon.

FILM CRITICS VOTE 'MR. CHIPS' FIRST

Reviewers Term Picture 'Best in 1939;' Donat's Work Honored.

MEMPHIS, Tenn., Feb. 26.—(AP) Newspaper Film Critics of America, composed of more than 600 critics from the nation's principal newspapers, have voted "Goodbye, Mr. Chips" the outstanding motion picture for 1939, Robert Donat the best actor, and Bette Davis the screen's best actress.

The announcement was made here tonight by Harry Martin, the Memphis Commercial-Appeal's amusements editor and acting president of the film organization.

Donat was picked for his performance in "Goodbye, Mr. Chips" and Miss Davis for her part in "Dark Victory."

The picture, "Mr. Smith Goes to Washington," was second choice of the critics, and "Wuthering Heights" third. Others were "Dark Victory," "Love Affair," "Ninotchka," "Pygmalion," "Stagecoach," "The Women" and "The Wizard of Oz," chosen in that order.

Among the actors, James Stewart was second for his performance in "Mr. Smith Goes to Washington," and Spencer Tracy third for his work in "Stanley and Livingstone." Greta Garbo, for her part in "Ninotchka," ranked second among actresses, and Rosalind Russell, star of "The Women," was third.

For his work in "Stagecoach," Thomas Mitchell was named the best male supporting player of the year. Greer Garson's performance in "Goodbye, Mr. Chips" won her the same honor among actresses.

GAS FUMES VICTIM REVIVED IN LAGRANGE

Special to THE CONSTITUTION. LAGRANGE, Ga., Feb. 26.—Lonnie E. Hutto, 25-year-old mill employee, was literally snatched back from death Saturday after he had been overcome by gas at his home here.

The odor of gas attracted Hutto's mother's attention to the bathroom, where she found him lying unconscious on the floor, partially clad. Aid was summoned and Hutto was resuscitated by artificial respiration and an inhalator. He apparently had been overcome while dressing.

In Real Life, Hollywood's Horror-Boy Lips

By Sheila Graham.

HOLLYWOOD, February 26.—Did you know that horror-boy Boris Karloff lips in real life, which is why he speaks so carefully in his movies? . . . Ray Milland is limping—he slipped in his bath. "I was in too much of a hurry to get to work, but never again," says Milland. . . . Jean Crawford supposed new escort, Lee Bowman, tells me, "I've taken Miss Crawford out only once—and that was because the studio asked me to." There are no quarters for Fred Perry in Helen Vinson's new apartment. So I'm wondering where he will go on his return from his Florida tennis trip. To the divorce court?

If you want a piece of a Dorothy Lamour sarong, you're too late. They have all been shipped to the Orient to satisfy eastern exhibitors and their clients. Dorothy may, or may not, know that part of her last sarong now furnishes a turban in the wardrobe of an Arab sheik! For her reconciliation with Errol Flynn (at the Warner studio party), Lili Damita was dressed with nun-like severity—all in black with white collar and cuffs. I'd say she was overdoing the role.

Latest beau for Bette Davis—Anatole Litvak, her new director, but Litvak has been falling in love with the ladies he directs ever since he came to Hollywood. Miriam Hopkins was the first. And he married her. He recently telephoned Ann Sheridan and fell in love with her. Now it's Bette's turn. And she seems to like him a lot. The boy must have a way with him.

Kay Francis now says that she will only make one or two pictures a year. A year ago she said she was through with picture making. Incidentally, an extra in Kay's current picture with Deanna Durbin owes her check for $25 to the intervention of the actress. The extra had to massage Miss Francis and speak one line. The scene was too long, and the director decided to cut the line. "Don't do that," begged Kay, "it means a difference of $16 to her." What is the difference between what she would have received as an extra and the $25 paid for a "bit" speaking role.

Jack Holt earned $170,000 last year for his work in "B" pictures that go to small towns. Nice going for the veteran who has emoted in movies for the past 27 years. How about putting him in a picture where we could all see him? . . . Loretta Young says she will make four or more movies a year, which means an assured income of $300,000. Won't that make Loretta the most eligible of the unmarried Hollywood maidens? . . . Talking about money, Hedy Lamarr is still waiting for the pay raise promised her at Metro. Her salary is still $750 a week, 40 weeks of the year. She gets nothing for the other 12. That reminds me, husband Gene Markey has given up his boat in part payment of a debt—and Hedy is delighted. She is one of those seashell girls.

Greta Garbo's predilection for enclosing her house with a high fence is all right while Garbo is living in it, but not so good when the place is up for sale. The truth of this has just been discovered by Mercedes de Costa, who is trying to sell the house around which Garbo, a former tenant, erected a ten-foot white fence. Would-be purchasers like the house, but complain that the fence obstructs the view. The selling price has been reduced to $12,500, but there are still no takers. Why doesn't someone pull down the fence?

W. C. Fields was trying to avoid a former-friend-now-enemy at a recent party. "I'll slip out," he said, "and if that guy sees me, I'll scuttle myself."

YESTERYEAR REVIVED

A vivid chapter in the history of the Old West is presented in George O'Brien's new film, "Bullet Code," which has as its locale the Mexican border country of 1880.

WHAT ATLANTA IS WEARING

A VISIT TO THE STORES

For "ever and ever" charm of spring is the print which leads a colorful life, to say the least. It blends with gaiety of your spring mood and is definitely a "buyword" for spring, 1940. On the left, Miss Minnie Lee Woodson is poised in a nonchalant mood before embarking on her adventure into a spring personality. Her dress is a navy blue and white faillie print worn with a white crepe blouse. The tilt of her navy pancake beret gives impetus to her light-hearted mood. Notice how it is edged with petal service braid with white inserts. Miss Woodson is wearing one of the outfits that fairly breathe, "Spring has come!" Smart tailored suits are as significant as the first robin of spring and Miss Marguerite Thomas, pictured on the right, is wearing one in black. The braid trim adds a high-spirited militant touch. Sailors are in town and they are changing headlines almost daily. Miss Thomas is wearing a perky straw model. Her white lingerie blouse adds a feminine touch to the tailored ensemble. Notice the flower spray pin which is an accessory note of importance and popularity. Call Lillian Mae at The Constitution for further details on these two numbers. The number is Walnut 6565.

MY DAY: Trying To See Walter Winchell

By Eleanor Roosevelt.

GOLDEN BEACH, Fla.—Have any of you read Elizabeth Goudge's "City of Belts"? If you have, a little story called "The Sister of the Angels" will bring you some of the same characters. This is one of the most delightful Christmas stories I have ever read. Henrietta, the 11-year-old heroine, is a charming child. In one way she is more mature than most of us, for she accepts people as they are and does not try to turn them into the kind of people they should be. She has the appreciation that all children have for people who treat them as equals.

The author shows her deep understanding of this particular trait in a child when Henrietta wisely reflects that she "never could see that being grown-up was anything to boast about. One didn't grow oneself, adding to one's inches by one's own skill. God grew one." If only more of us could remember that, we might not be such a trial to our children.

I rejoiced in one other little passage: "Why does Christmas come only once a year? I think it's a great mistake that it doesn't come oftener." Of course, I can understand that, in some ways, it might prove fairly exhausting to have to repeat all the things which one does on Christmas several times during the year, but I wish the Christmas spirit could stay with us more constantly. I am sure many of us would be happier.

Last night we drove to meet my son James at the airport. We had not telephoned ahead and found ourselves three-quarters of an hour early because headlights had delayed his plane. We watched a plane come in and leave, a sight which always fascinates me at night. They look more like birds than ever, and when they are far away in the sky, they just look like shooting stars.

I did not step out of the car, for so many were parked around us that I decided there must be quite a crowd. However, we were in a place where I could see Jimmy leave the plane. I saw him arrive and in a few minutes he was walking through the darkness toward the car. While we waited for his bag, and he went inside to the ticket office, I had an opportunity to catch a glimpse of a gentleman who has always been just an interesting name to me, Mr. Walter Winchell, who had also apparently been meeting this plane. As he walked away with another man, I craned my neck to get a really good view of him, but all I saw was a hat worn very jauntily and a rather tall, thin gentleman who walked rapidly away.

It has always amused me to see celebrities, but unless I can sit down and really talk to them and come away with a feeling that I have actually made the acquaintance of another human being, I have no urge to go and shake them by the hand, or say a polite good morning or good evening.

We arrived home rather late and today has dawned a most beautiful, sunny, windless morning. I look forward to the beach with the greatest of joy.

Puzzled Boy Admits Girls Confuse Him

By Caroline Chatfield.

DEAR MISS CHATFIELD: I'm another of the poor dumb brutes who think they can figure out the fair sex and find they can't. I had a girl friend who booted me around like nobody's business. I got tired of it and asked her to introduce me to an acquaintance of hers which she refused to do. Rather she said she would and never did. So I made other arrangements and the other girl and I were making good time.

The first girl friend got angry at me and refused to speak for a while and then began to show a real interest in me which is puzzling.

By this time I had gone over the deep end for number two and she for me. So I thought, But she ups and refuses to go with me to a dance, also refuses to date me as much as before and offers absolutely no excuse for the change. Can you figure this one? PUZZLED.

ANSWER: Brother, giving you a little primer lesson in feminine psychology. The females are vain and vindictive, greedy and pugnacious, as far as their boy friends are concerned. Once a gal gets her branding iron on a boy and calls him her beau, she will fight like nobody's business to keep him in her fold, fair means or foul.

Even though she cares for him in the most casual sort of way, she doesn't want any other gal to have him and if there's a way to scotch him, she'll resort to it. Not a very admirable attitude we must admit, but recognized by every gal child as natural and normal.

It hasn't occurred to you, evidently, that number one is putting up a fight for you. In all probability, she has shaken her fist (figuratively speaking) in the face of number two and warned her two being further. Number two being timid or sympathetic has tactfully withdrawn.

"Then turn to the right and turn to the left and turn to the one that you love best," and have it out with her. There's no love puzzle that can't be solved with a little forthright conversation between the two parties. It's only when a third party enters that the waters are muddled and the waters are troubled and nobody can see anything very clearly; even down to the grave.

Perhaps, yea, verily, it is the puzzle, the mystery, the continual surprise that a gal is to a boy that keeps the zip in their relationship. No matter how often you explain to the masculine mind how the feminine mind eternally refuses to understand and keeps reiterating "You can't guess 'em. You can't riddle 'em. You can't reason about 'em or with 'em."

And the gals reply: "She who has known one man well, knows all men." CAROLINE CHATFIELD.

Glamor in Sally Saver's Recipes

Regal Posture Changes Your Appearance

By Ida Jean Kain.

To have an even chance of qualifying as one of the world's best-dressed, a woman is presupposed to enjoy an annual clothes budget of $100,000. That lets most of us out!

Aside from this, she must have a highly developed style sense. It is an ingrained feminine belief that having the money would take care of that! But there are additional requisites which have no connection with silver spoons and siler foxes—an elegant posture and a good figure.

It is significant that the women who tied for first place on this year's list of the 10 best-dressed have lovely figures. They are the Duchesses of Kent and Windsor. It is generally known that the Duchess of Windsor has a horror of fat and is athletically inclined. And the Duchess of Kent receives recognition as a style dictator partly because of her slim attractiveness.

Both the Duchesses have regal postures, but not so regal as that of Queen Elizabeth, farther along on the list, who is on parade practically all the time and therefore acutely conscious of the necessity for holding herself beautifully.

As we analyze the postures of these women, their perfection seems to originate with the carriage of the head. At any rate, that is an excellent starting point—most women do not carry their heads elegantly!

Good head carriage is extremely important. When the head is perfectly balanced and held erect on the top of the spine, the lower abdominal wall is reflexly contracted. This pulls the hips in, the chest up.

Sit down before a triple vision mirror and test for yourself the effect of the head carriage. Pile your curls on top of your head so that you can see what you are doing. That line connecting the head and shoulders in back should be as straight as possible. When this straight line is achieved, you will notice that the chest is lifted into a beautiful line, and that the lower abdominal wall is pulled up. Incidentally, when the head is perfectly balanced on the spine, you hold the chin level and there is no sagging of the throat in your hair—you have a beautifully chiseled throatline!

Try to put this theory into practice: When you go out for a walk, hold the head up, as if a string were attached to the very tip of the crown of the head, pulling you upward. This not only gives you a beautiful figure, but a much more buoyant walk.

If you will keep at it, you can train your muscles so that beautiful posture is a reflex action. Then it will be simple. And even though you do not qualify as one of the ten best-dressed, you will certainly stand out from the crowd!

Those Tricky Ever Popular Lamb Chops Rumba Steps Are Served With Fruit

By Sally Saver.

"Why, it's easy," says the young man who thought he couldn't rumba.

Of course it's easy! With diagrams showing you just how to take each step, how to keep time, you quickly learn to dance the fascinating rumba—all the other popular dances of the year.

Hum a quick "1-and-2, 3-and-4" and try the basic rumba step. Count 1—Step to left on left foot. AND—Close to left on left foot. AND—Close with right foot. 2—Step forward on left foot and pause.

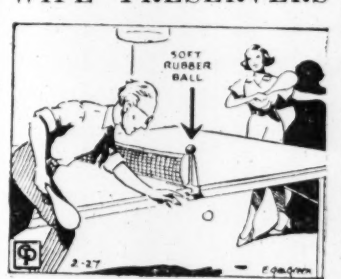

Now, to reverse the figure. Count 3—Step to right with right foot. AND—Close with left foot. Count 4—Step forward with right, pause—and you're ready for another catchy rumba step.

No matter if your dancing has been a timid half-walk, quickly you catch on to the lively rumba style. Take quick, short steps. As you change weight, lower the heel of the foot receiving the weight, sway hips to that side—a little.

Just as easily you perfect other dances—the languorous tango, the dreamy waltz, the glamorous Westchester.

In our 40-page booklet, SOCIAL DANCING SELF-TAUGHT, a famous dance teacher gives diagrams, instructions for basic steps and variations for the waltz, Westchester, rumba, tango, fox-trot, shag. Tips on leading and following, posture, rhythm make you an expert, popular partner. Send 15c in coins for our booklet, SOCIAL DANCING SELF-TAUGHT, to Home Institute, The Constitution, Atlanta, Ga. Write plainly your name, address, and the name of booklet.

WIFE PRESERVERS

As a safety measure, impale small rubber balls on top of brackets which support the table tennis set.

The popularity of lamb chops never wanes. They figure prominently in diets for those who need the maximum nourishment in the smallest number of calories; they are chosen for their delicate flavor and for their high mineral and vitamin content. They are among the first meats selected for little children. Here is an intriguing new way to serve them.

Baked Lamb Chops With Fruits.
6 loin lamb chops.
Salt, pepper.
1 cup cooked prunes.
1 cup finely cut cooking apples.
1 quart soft white bread cubes.
1 teaspoon celery salt.
1 teaspoon poultry seasoning.

Have chops cut double thick. Sprinkle well with salt and pepper. Pit prunes and cut into very small pieces. Combine with apple, bread cubes and seasonings and blend thoroughly. (If bread is somewhat dry, extra moisture may be needed, in which case add one beaten egg.) Form stuffing into six patties, circle each patty with the thin end of a chop and hold meat together with toothpicks or skewers. Lay chops flat in well-greased baking pan and brush tops with fat. Bake in a moderate oven, 350 degrees, one to one and one-fourth hours. Serves six.

Using these baked chops as the main dish, here is a suggested dinner menu:

French Onion Soup
Baked Lamb Chops With Fruits
Buttered Mashed Turnips
Brussels Sprouts
Lettuce With Russian Dressing
Sponge Cake With Lemon Custard Sauce
Tea or Coffee

Have You Any CO in Your Blood?

By Dr. William Brady.

When coal, coke, charcoal, wood, oil, gas, gasoline, cotton, cloth or any other fuel or material burns with a free supply of air (o) or open draft, the chief product of combustion is carbon dioxide, otherwise called carbonic acid gas, formed by the chemical combination of one part atom of carbon (the symbol for carbon is C) and two atoms of O, and the product is CO₂, a gas present in the air in minute quantities (three parts in ten thousand in open country, as much as 70 to 80 parts in 10,000 in narrow city alleys or canyons where there is poor ventilation, and to 500 parts per 10,000 in breweries where fermentation produces great quantities of the gas.)

Any fuel burning therefore consumes oxygen and produces carbon dioxide. Ordinary gas jet produces three cubic feet of CO₂ in an hour; a man quietly breathing produces one cubic foot. Therefore an oil lamp or gas burner exhausts the oxygen from the air of a room as much as a person does, and a heater burning gas, oil, gasoline, coal, coke, charcoal or wood uses up as much oxygen as many persons would.

When any fuel burns with a restricted supply of air, closed damper, or with flame flaring, or when accumulation of soot on burners become incandescent, or when cast iron becomes red hot, some CO, carbon monoxide, may be given off. When flame impinges on any cold surface some CO may be produced by incomplete combustion. When illuminating gas (artificial gas, coal gas or water gas) is turned on too full some of the large amount of CO it contains may escape unburned, in lamp, gas plate, room heater, water heater.

During the smoking of cigar, pipe or cigarette a certain amount of CO is produced and absorbed by the smoker into the blood. Whether the monoxide in tobacco smoke is the chief factor in the effects of smoking is still a matter of debate. My own opinion is that, so far as our present knowledge goes, it is more logical to ascribe the effects of smoking to carbon monoxide than to nicotine or other substances which may be present in the smoke.

The blood of most city dwellers today contains traces of carbon monoxide. Smoking quickly jumps the amount of monoxide in the blood up to a comparatively significant level. In other words, smoking produces a degree of anoxia, shortage of oxygen in the body tissues and cells. This state would seem consistent with the observations of Silbert and Friedlander (Jour. AMA, May 30, '31) who found the basal metabolism of smokers always about 15 per cent below normal and this minus metabolism continued for months after smoking was given up.

Made To Slenderize

By Barbara Bell.

The shirtwaister is always an excellent choice for those of you who want to look slimmer than the scales imply, and this one (1905-B) is designed to look especially slenderizing. The paneled skirt is slim-hipped and almost straight. The plain front of the bodice continues the line of the skirt panel, to give a lengthening effect. The shoulders are squared out, but not gathered, and the fullness under the shoulder yoke takes care of correct fit over the bust.

A smart double-collar effect finishes the deep V of the neckline—and you can wear the dress merely with its self collar, if you like. A classic style like this makes up nicely in such street materials as spun rayon or flat crepe, and in linen or chambray to wear around the house. It's one of those comfortable patterns that you'll repeat many times. Barbara Bell Pattern No. 1905-B is designed for sizes 36, 38, 40, 42, 44, 46, 48, 50 and 52. Size 38 requires 4 7/8 yards of 39-inch material; 2-3 yard contrasting. Price of pattern, 15 cents, book 15 cents. Do not send stamps. Mail orders to Barbara Bell Pattern Dept., The Constitution, Atlanta, Ga.

Pert, Basque Style For Easter

By Lillian Mae.

Hurry—there's just time before Easter to stitch up this beguiling young heart-breaker! Lillian Mae's easy-to-make Pattern 4399 is in basque style—so appealingly feminine—and would look gay in flowery print. The low-pointed, front waist seam gives you a new longer-waisted look, and gathers in the center skirt below are very much in vogue. You'll love the panel down the front of the bodice, with soft, decorative gathers at either side. Take your choice of a higher curved neckline or a very young square shape. And if you want to dress up the sleeves, shirr them prettily on the outside. Perky bows added to the square-neck style give extra charm.

Pattern 4399 is available in junior miss sizes 11, 12, 13, 14, 15, 16 and 17. Size 13 takes 2 1/4 yards 39-inch fabric.

Send 15 cents in coins for this Lillian Mae pattern. Do not send stamps. Write plainly size, name, address and style number.

Capture spring enchantment with a wardrobe selected from our Lillian Mae Spring Pattern Book. It interprets the gay and lovely new styles in colorful clothes for tots, teens and twenties. . . . slimline dresses for the business girl. . . . smart frocks for the woman-past-40. Book 15 cents.

Send your order to Lillian Mae Pattern Department, The Constitution, Atlanta, Ga.

Woman's Quiz

Q. What causes the hissing sound when a vacuum-sealed can of food is opened?

A. With one exception, the hissing sound is caused by air rushing into the can. The exception is with vacuum-packed coffee. Sometimes the coffee generates gases after it has been packed and sealed, and when the can is opened the hissing sound is caused by these gases escaping.

Q. How can I best remove a large spot of glue from a tablecloth?

A. If the material is washable, soak the spot in warm water. Occasionally it is necessary to boil the stained material. Or, sponge the spot with dilute acetic acid, using absorbents such as clean blotters or a pad of soft cloth. White vinegar may be used instead of the acid, but is not always satisfactory.

Q. How much should a boy baby 18 months old weigh and what should be his height?

A. The average height at this age for boys is 31 3/4 inches, and the average weight 24 5/8 pounds.

SALLY FORTH Says: Parties Galore To Herald Arrival of College Students

• • • DUBBING IT a "red-letter day," Sally has circled the date, March 21, on her calendar, for upon that day a horde of Atlanta's out-of-town college contingent will arrive to begin spring holidays. The presence of a group of attractive visitors who will accompany the Atlanta students home will form the inspiration for a whirl of gay parties to enlighten Easter week.

Caroline Yundt and Eleanor Clay, popular students at Bradford Junior College in Bradford, Mass., will have as their guests a trio of their classmates, Virginia Ramsdell, of Philadelphia, Pa., and Virginia Kirby, of Columbus, Ohio, who will accompany Caroline to this city to spend the holidays at the George Yundt residence on Cherokee road, while Denise Bientz, of Salt Lake City, Utah, will be ensconced in the Ryburn Clay home as Eleanor's guest.

Bootsie Candler and Elsa McCall, who also attend Bradford, have chosen to spend their vacations away from home. Bootsie will first journey to Philadelphia, Pa., to visit Ann Groton, after which she will go to Woodmere, L. I., to spend several days as the guest of her close friend, Mary Alice Fiske. A program of festivities has been planned in her honor, and Sally predicts that this youthful exponent of southern charm will be a sought-after figure throughout her sojourn in the east.

Elsa will desert the east to embark by plane for sunny Florida. She will pause in Atlanta only long enough to be joined by Forrest Adair, Mary Elizabeth Beers and Walter Logan, after which the group will fly to Miami to be guests of those erstwhile Atlantans, Mr. and Mrs. Stephen Lynch.

Elsie Dunnick, popular student at Miss Semple's School in New York, accompanied by two attractive sisters, Janice and Annette McBride, of Dallas, Texas, will arrive in this city on March 16. The party series to honor the trio will begin on March 18 when Georgia Oliver entertains at a luncheon in their honor. That evening Elsie will compliment her visitors at a buffet supper to take place at her home on Peachtree circle, and on March 19 Margaret L'Engle will be hostess at a luncheon for the belles.

Eleanor Stafford, who is enrolled at Georgetown school in the nation's capital, will be accompanied by her roommate, Carolyn McVerg, of Binghamton, N. Y., when she arrives on March 21, and, of course, a whirl of parties will enliven their 10-day stay here. Incidentally, Eleanor is now enjoying a skiing party at Sky Top Inn in northern Pennsylvania, where she and her roommate are popular members of a party being given by Norbert Weldon, of Westfield, N. J.

Mary Clapp will forsake her textbooks at Wesleyan College in late March to spend her holidays here as the guests of her parents, the B. K. Clapps, on The Prado. A high light of her vacation will be the Zenax fraternity formal, an annual affair which Mary has attended for six consecutive years.

Betty Lee Jones, of Leesburg, Miss., and Betty Swank, of Milwaukee, will arrive on March 21 to be guests of Jeannette Estes, their popular classmate at National Park Seminary. Parties galore will herald their 10-day visit to Atlanta, this to be Betty Lee's first visit south.

If Frances Cundell's tentative plans materialize, she will visit Sally Cobb Johnson at the Finch School in New York, when spring holidays begin at Agnes Scott College. The latter half of her vacation will be spent in McComb, Miss., where she will be the fete guest of Mrs. Jack Hall, Josephine McDougall, who attends classes at Gunston Hall, will make her eagerly anticipated appearance here on March 16 for a 10-day visit with her parents, the Calhoun McDougalls.

Barbara Indell arrives on March 20, spring vacation at National Park school beginning on March 19. In a recent letter to her parents, Mr. and Mrs. Harry Indell, Barbara penned a glowing account of the recent Mardi Gras held at the school. Sally is informed that the attractive belle was particularly enthusiastic about the famous New York orchestra engaged to play for the event.

Isabel Woolford will arrive on March 15 from Mount Vernon Seminary in Washington, D. C., to spend the spring holidays with her mother, Mrs. Charlotte Boyd Woolford, here.

Marjorie Corinna Wright, who attends Stephens College in Columbia, Mo., will spend the spring holidays with her classmate, Marjorie Reynolds, in Ames, Iowa, a

Mrs. L. A. Morris, of Los Angeles, Cal., was photographed upon her arrival by plane yesterday to attend the marriage of her son, Allen Morris, to Miss Ida Akers, which will be brilliantly solemnized tomorrow evening. Mrs. Morris is the guest of Mrs. T. H. Dozier at her home on Fifteenth street and is being included in the guest list for the final prenuptial parties given for the bridal couple.

Junior Leaguers To Honor Miss Chandler, of New York

A series of interesting parties has been planned in compliment to Miss Gloria Chandler, of New York, who is the field representative of the children's theater division of the Association of Junior Leaguers of America. Miss Chandler is in the city to direct the sessions of the Children's Theater Institute to be held this week at the Biltmore hotel under the sponsorship of the Atlanta Junior League.

Mrs. Green Warren, national director of the League, will honor the visitor Thursday at a luncheon to be given at her home on Habersham road. On Friday Mrs. W. Colquitt Carter will be hostess at a buffet luncheon at her home on West Wesley road for Miss Chandler and for members of the board of directors of the Atlanta Junior League. She will be assisted in entertaining by her sisters, Mesdames Bonneau Ansley and William Benedict.

An antique epergne filled with colorful fruit will grace the luncheon table, and pastel spring flowers will beautify the home. Last evening Mrs. Rutherford Ellis was hostess at a dinner party at her home on Avery drive for Miss Chandler, guests having included a group of friends of the hostess.

Mr. and Mrs. John K. Otley Jr. will also honor the eastern visitor, the date of this affair to be announced later. Miss Eliza Richards To Address Club. A distinguished visitor in Atlanta is Miss Eliza Richards, founder of the Glen Eden Community Center School for Mountain Boys and Girls, in Lee county, Kentucky, who will speak at the Kentucky Club which meets this afternoon at 2:30 o'clock at the home of Mrs. J. Moss Beeler, 1731 Johnson road, N. E. Miss Richards is the guest of her sister, Mrs. J. Milton Brandon, on Chelsea circle. Mrs. Brandon and Mrs. Turner Dixon will be guests of the club.

Peachtree Hills Club. The Peachtree Hills Woman's Club held its bi-monthly business meeting recently at the home of the president, Mrs. Lynton F. Ramsey, on Peachtree Hills. For the information of new members, the charter was read by the parliamentarian, Mrs. A. C. Frost. Mrs. Stanley C. Davis was appointed pioneer woman and Mrs. H. L. Perryman party chairman for the golden jubilee to be held in the spring. Contribution was made to the student aid fund.

On the other hand, a wedding really will take place in June uniting an Atlanta girl and an out-of-town admirer. She is an only child, attended North Avenue Presbyterian school, and is now completing her studies at college. The groom-elect is in business with his father in the nearby city where he resides and is a well-known young businessman.

Jimmy Demaret Captures New Orleans Tourney With 286

All in the Game
—by Jack Troy

Performance Things often have happened in reverse for Fred Sington in baseball. He has been a victim of "cover up" proceedings, never seemingly having been given the chance in the big leagues he deserved.

And since so many things have happened to work against Sington, it is nice to learn that something else has happened—in reverse—and is a boost rather than a blast.

Big Fred's batting average for 1939 doesn't look so hot on paper. For an outfielder, a mark of .254 looks downright homely.

But The Man passed through Atlanta the other day and signed up Fred Sington for another season with the Louisville Colonels—at an increase.

You have to go under the surface to realize how valuable Sington was after he joined the Colonels in July of last season.

"We talked things over, The Man and I did," said Fred yesterday. "He looked a little deeper than what I actually hit in percentage."

"And he figured that, while I made only 67 hits in 264 tries, those hits totaled 129 bases, almost two bases for every hit. The record showed 17 doubles, three triples and 13 home runs."

"The Man also figured out that 55 runs batted in for 264 times at bat actually led the Louisville team."

"I am mighty proud to be with an outfit like Louisville. They have been good to me and I hope I can have my best year for them," Sington said.

Big Fred leaves for the training camp at Arcadia, Fla., in a few days.

Chicanery There has been a lot of "heat" put on for Georgia Tech and Tennessee to meet in some sport, but did the committee really have to resort to such questionable proceedings as it did Sunday?

The Knoxville draw smacks of the old days when the committee shuffled the names in a hat, for appearances' sake, and then paired the teams as they saw fit.

If it really was the luck of the draw, then Georgia Tech may be the unluckiest team in the annual tournament.

Chances are Roy Mundorff's sophomores would have had a better chance against any other team—in the first round—than Tennessee, playing on its home court.

Barring the wildest sort of breaks in their favor, the Yellow Jackets are going to Knoxville purely as a formality. Tennessee . . . home cooking . . . home court . . . and all that sort of thing, virtually makes the Jackets a prohibitive choice.

Still, something might happen. It could. And wouldn't it serve the committee right if Tech should win that first-round game?

It's Awful So it seems that the inebricated Chinaman (not Confucius) was playing his first round of golf, after watching the game for some time, and quite by accident he sunk his tee shot. He walked up to the cup with his caddy and peered down ruefully.

"What a lie," he wailed, "gimme my niblick!"

Ty Cobb, the old Georgian, never knows when to let well enough alone, apparently. A golf addict since his retirement from baseball, Ty now has gone in for skiing out in California. Ice skating may be next for the great competitor.

Joe Jackson, who never wore shoes of any kind until he was 18, played just as much baseball in Georgia as he did in South Carolina before he went to the big leagues. He spent one season with Greenville, another season with Savannah. Old-timers still insist he was a victim of the 1919 Black Sox scandal.

CAGE TOURNAMENT IS CANCELLED

Tommy Reeder, president of the American Basketball Congress, announced cancellation yesterday of the national amateur basketball tournament which was to have opened here last night.

Reeder said 22 teams, most of them ranked as amateur champions of their respective states, were tentatively listed for the tournament, and officials of the congress expected "at least enough for a 16-team draw." Adverse weather in the north, however, prevented playoff of several state tournaments, Reeder explained, and the teams coming in were not enough to fill out a good national tournament.

"There will be no attempt to hold the tournament until next year," he added.

Telegrams of notification were sent to all teams, but the St. Cecilia Holy Name squad of Kenner, N. J., failed to receive word of the change in plans and showed up anyway. Reeder said they would play a series of games with amateur and semi-professional teams in Atlanta before returning home.

Champion Skaters To Show at Roxy

Championship ice skaters will be featured in the All-American Ice Carnival starting Thursday for four days at the Roxy theater.

Featuring the entertainment program are Douglas Duffy, comedy and speed skater; Genevieve Trojan, North America figure skating champion; and Bobby Hearn, United States champion broad jumper.

BIG DICK RAINES IS HERE TONIGHT

Headlining Dick Raines, one of wrestling's most dynamic figures and greatest gate attractions, heavyweights grapple shows will be resumed tonight at the Atlanta theater at 8:30 o'clock under the promotion of C. S. and Bill Hartman, 275-pound California man mountain, in one of the 20-minute feature.

The other main event brings together Dan O'Connor, whose matches here two years ago created a sensation, and Roland Kirchner, the wrestling master from Oklahoma A. & M., who formerly held the national collegiate title.

Lou Nyman, popular Finlander, grapples Dr. MacKenzie, of Scotland, in the one-fall opening event.

Apparently, fans are eager for a return of the giant matmen here and advance interest indicates tonight's inaugural show will be well attended.

Popular prices will be in effect.

Cage Federation Plans Tournament

The tournament and banquet committees of the Greater Atlanta Amateur Basketball Federation will meet Tuesday at 7:30 p. m. at the Y. M. C. A. auditorium. Managers of teams are invited to present their suggestions for the conduct of the Gold Medal tournament and the "Champions All" banquet to be sponsored by the federation.

Williams, Smith Both To Stay as Aides If Dewey Proves Calibre, Says Richards

MANAGER LIKES PLAN TO RETAIN THREE CATCHERS

Injuries Have Hampered Dewey for Two Years.

By JACK TROY.

After three years Manager Paul Richards still isn't sure Dewey Williams is a Southern league catcher.

Paul thinks Dewey is a good catcher because he has looked all right in the spring and in such games as he has caught in the season.

But Richards doesn't know. Because one year Williams was knocked out by appendicitis. And last year a knee injury in a spring exhibition ruined him for the season.

"If Dewey proves to us he is a good Southern league catcher," Richards said yesterday, "we'll have three catchers this summer. It's up to him. I said at first that I thought he would be a major leaguer before he ever became a class man, but of course I was figuring on illness and injury. The breaks have been against him."

"However, I very frankly would like to have two catchers, besides myself. We have had a lot of trouble with injuries in the past. I know Doc Smith can go. He has proved it."

In the past it wasn't uncommon for the Crackers to have to "borrow" a catcher from Steel plant or even resort to using Bob Durham back of the plate.

But if Dewey Williams, who is in good shape again, shows that he has the stuff it takes to catch in the Southern league, the Crackers shouldn't have any backstop trouble this summer.

Richards, Smith and Williams will sort of fill the bill.

TWO GOOD RACES RUN IN NATIONAL

Spunky Creek Boy, Colonial Lady M. Good But Not Great.

GRAND JUNCTION, Tenn., Feb. 26.—(P)—A gallery of 200 gaily-clad riders galloped over the picturesque terrain of the Hobart Ames plantation here today as four of the country's top-racing birds made their bids for the national field trial championship.

Twenty-four dogs, two of them setters, and all winners of major stakes, are paired in the running which opened today.

None of today's starters turned in outstanding performances although Spunky Creek Boy, a white and liver pointer, owned by E. J. Shaffer, of Hutchinson, Kan., and handled by Ed Mack Farrior, of Union Springs, Ala., and Colonial Lady M., carrying the colors of Dr. John M. Meacham, Boston, Mass., remained in the running with creditable showings.

Creek Boy, working in the morning round, showed unlimited stamina by romping through his three-hour heat effortlessly and returning four coxey finds, one of which he flushed. The Shaffer pointer, however, turned in one unproductive point and roamed off the course temporarily. His brace mate, Dawn's Highland Bill, stepped a birdless heat.

Lady M., a white and liver pointer, proved a good bird finder in the afternoon round, notching five coxey and a pair of single birds. She handled two of her points in championship style but was ragged on the others.

Little Bobbitt's Peerless Pride, son of last year's champion, Sports Peerless Pride, finished strong, running a dilatory race due to her first two hours in the field. The young setter, not yet two years old, turned in his only two coxey during the last hour of the heat, handling both nicely.

Pride, braced with Lady M., also drew approving nods of galleryites with a wide, shrewd race. The eight-mile course, somewhat heavy from recent rain and snow, is drying out fast under a warm sun. This year's gallery is one of the largest to follow the meet in recent years.

One of the favorites in the meet, Lester's Enjoy Wahoo, owned by Dr. B. S. Lester, of Birmingham, Ala., will take the field tomorrow afternoon, braced with Homewood Flying Dutchman, Homewood Stardust and Bet's Country Boy, both ranking pointers, are paired for the morning round.

HENRICH SIGNS.

MASSILLON, Ohio, Feb. 26.—(P)—Tommy Henrich, outfielder for the New York Yankees, signed his 1940 contract at his home here today and mailed it to New York. Henrich declined to reveal his salary but said he is "satisfied."

He will leave Friday for the Yankees' training camp at St. Petersburg, Fla.

Baseball Managers Will Meet Tonight

Team managers are urged to be present at the third meeting of the Atlanta Federation Baseball Association Tuesday night at 66 Broad at 7:30 o'clock.

Four leagues have already been practically closed and the closing of two more will be taken up at the meeting. From all indications there will be six leagues, a total of 36 teams in the federation this year playing for the right to enter the National Association tournament and the runner-up to enter the American Congress tournament, both being an annual affair.

Any teams desiring to enter can write Jack Perkins or Dusty Spear, at 66 Broad street, or call Walnut 8757.

Stays With Wind

Charlie Yates Should Feel Right at Home on Blustery Canterbury Course After His Experience at Troon.

By AL SHARP.

Charlie Yates should be right at home this summer when he goes to the National Open at the Canterbury Country Club, near Cleveland. Wind makes the course a nightmare for most golfers, according to a recent article, and that information should be enough to gladden Charlie's heart, because his low shots won him the British Amateur title over windswept Troon.

Yates may be the amateur for whom golf fans are searching—the amateur who can stop the pros. Certainly if he has the "wind-cheaters" he used at Troon working, Charlie should give the pros a run for their money.

Marvin Ward almost turned the trick, remember? And Yates may be the man of this year.

His ability to make shots into the wind was proven at Troon after months of drilling on that detail, and he has shown fans and opponents he knows the answers to tough lies.

GREAT SHOT.

Fans who followed Yates at Charlotte in 1937 will be bowled to Freddie Haas in the finals of the Southern Amateur will remember a shot he pulled that hot day. It was one of the best.

Charlie let his drive on the fourth hole get away from him. The ball didn't go far, hitting a tree and coming to rest in a groove. Rains had softened the loam on which the ball stopped. About 20 yards along the path to the green at least 220 yards away, there was a narrow opening between the trees. The opening wasn't over 10 feet high.

It looked like the place to play a safe recovery to the fairway, but Yates needed everything he could get. He decided to gamble. Using a 2 iron, Yates got set after several minutes studying the terrain.

The clubhouse tore through the ball and sent it screaming under the trees. The ball didn't start rising until it was 100 yards on a decline for the green. The ball got by the traps guarding the green, rolled across the carpet to the back edge.

It was a beauty, typical of the low shots Charlie played into the windy winds of Troon a year later.

AMERICUS SIGNS NEW MANAGER

AMERICUS, Ga., Feb. 26.—(P)—Bernard Deviveiros, veteran infielder who managed Spokane of the Class B Western-International league last year, will manage Americus of the Georgia-Florida league this season, Club President W. T. Anderson announced today.

E. J. Bevasi, of the Brooklyn Dodgers office staff, will succeed Bob Norris as business manager. It was not announced whether the new manager would play, but he played more than 100 games at shortstop and second base last year while piloting Spokane to a fifth place finish in the far western league. He batted .274 and fielded up among the leaders in both positions.

Signing of Deviveiros brought to full strength the list of managers for the Georgia-Florida league.

SO RED THE FACE—If this was a color photograph, Smiley Johnson's face would be as red as the sweater he is wearing. He is shown on the right receiving a trophy from Coach Wallace Butts for being selected by teammates as the most valuable man on Georgia's football team last season. Smiley received every player's vote except his own.

Smiley Johnson Shakes As He Receives Trophy

By CHARLIE ROBERTS.

After the University of Georgia's slick basketball five had lost to Tennessee's very hot Vols Saturday night in Athens, the general consensus of opinion about the Bulldog campus was that if there is a better team in these parts than the Bulldogs, the orange-clad Volunteers are undoubtedly that team.

On every hand one heard only the highest of praise for the great floor play and guarding of Captain Huffman of the Vols. Everyone was amazed at the brilliance and accuracy of the shooting of Bernie Mehen, but agreed he must have had an "on" night, as no one could shoot with such deadly consistency.

Johnny Broadnax, stumpy little assistant athletic director at Georgia, called the Vols "undoubtedly the best team we have faced." He opined ruefully, "They have an even better team than we."

"Yeah," agreed Earl Whitworth, "rougher too. When you play those guys you really need a tough referee like Ben Chapman. I hope he calls 'em in the tournament." (The last-half roughing nearly caused fists to fly on several occasions, and the Vols lost Huffman and Lattrell via the foul route. Georgia lost Kirkland.)

Grid Coach Wallace Butts, who had watched his footballers go through their first spring game in the afternoon, was highly disappointed over their showing. He was a weebone figure immediately after the "game" in the afternoon, but he was in a highly jovial mood at the cage game that night. He figured in the most amusing incident of the evening.

During the half-time intermission, Wally was called on to present Smiley Johnson with the "most valuable player" trophy for his great work during the 1939 grid season. With Woodruff gym packed to its near-3,000 capacity, and with flashlight bulbs, photographers were using, popping in his face, and the resounding approval of the yelling students in his ears, Smiley turned to Wally and quavered, "Gosh, Coach, I'm just a-shakin'."

Butts gave the stage-frightened Smiley a side-long glance, and snickered, "What do you think I'm doing?"

Atlanta, represented by a goodly delegation, including North Fulton, West Fulton, Fulton, Doris Hills, Decatur, Russell and Marist (playing in both the N. G. I. C. and G. I. A. A.) may be expected to produce plenty of fireworks, and perhaps even the ultimate winner.

Griffin and Fulton high tie up in Thursday's opener Thursday at 2:30. Three tilts will be played in the afternoon and three at night the initial day.

Triangles To Play 3 Tilts This Week

The Atlanta Y. M. C. A. Triangles will face a heavy schedule this week as they approach an early climax of their current season. On Wednesday they will play the Gasco quintet in a regular Civic League game at 9 p. m.; on Thursday they will meet the J. P. C. Cubs at 7:30 p. m., and on Saturday they will play in the state Y. M. C. A. junior meet at Athens.

Small, Conyers Sign for Constitution Doubles Pin Tourney

Monday is wash day in some leagues and off-day in the golf pros', but it was just plain wandering day in this one. And surprising enough the three pros we visited were taking sailors' holidays—sticking close to their shops.

At East Lake, Pro George Sargent, Charles Dannals and Wimberly Peters were chatting about this and that, mostly the bad weather which has kept golfers by the fireside. The conversation turned to food, for one of the crowd was interested in adding weight and another was on a reducing diet.

"P. J. Hanahan is a great milk drinker," said Pete Peters, turning to Charley who has gained 20 pounds in the last few months, "and it sure puts on the pounds."

"That's a swell idea," replied Dannals. "I've just eaten lunch but... Hey, boy! Bring me a quart of milk."

Gene Dahlbender and Hal Sargent came up before we left, and the weather took another beating.

A NEW STUNT.

Pro Charles Edens, over at the James L. Key course, the next stop, was moaning low about "slow business," but he was impressed with a new idea developed by a golf club manufacturer. The company has sent pros a complete set of iron with instructions to allow any prospective buyer to try them. Why didn't they send the woods? "Well, you know a lot of prospects are dubs," explained Edens, "and those woods might not come back in the same condition."

Howard Beckett, pro at Capital City, was getting only one crack to his wrist—and hoping for another—in the weather. A snowball fight and a slip on the ice put Howard's arm in a sling for several weeks, but he got it out yesterday.

"Dorothy Kirby has been practicing a lot and she's still hitting her shots well, but she isn't scoring," Beckett mused. "I don't know what it is. There's nothing wrong with her swing. She'll hit six or seven shots well and then suddenly she can't get into the ball. She'll get out of that, though, in a few more days."

NO GOOD SCORES.

Which reminds us of what Dorothy said down at the court-house, where she was paying some taxes yesterday morning. "I've been practicing a lot. No, I haven't had any scores to speak of."

Dorothy will leave a week from Wednesday for Belleair, Fla., to play in the invitation tournament, which will start March 11. She will go on to Augusta and then to Pinehurst, making three tours in as many weeks.

We had some idea that all of Atlanta's clubs might be visited in one day, but after making that trip from East Lake to Capital City via Chickamauga, Wauhatchie and way points we've convinced. You should get up early in the morning and travel late at night to make stops at all 15 clubs in one day, but we'll be seeing you.

Memphis Purchases Hollywood Player

MEMPHIS, Tenn., Feb. 26.—(AP)—The Memphis Chick's front office today announced the purchase of Les Gabrielson, promising first baseman, from the Hollywood club of the Pacific Coast league. Terms were not revealed.

Gabrielson divided last season between Baltimore in the International and Hollywood, posting a batting average of .280 in the AA loops. He is a left-hander.

PAIR CAPTURED INITIAL MEET BACK IN 1933

Cleveland, Carter To Defend Their Women's Title.

George (Tubby) Small and John Conyers, who teamed to win the first annual Constitution's "St. Patrick's Day" doubles bowling tournament in 1933, filed the first entry to compete in this year's eighth annual pin contest that will be rolled on three separate local bowling centers on Saturday, March 16.

This popular couple has not missed one of the subsequent Constitution bowling events since their victory in the initial contest. In one year, Small made a special trip from New Jersey to Atlanta to keep the "chain of continuous competition" unbroken.

McCOY, SHERIFF SIGN.

Jack Sheriff and Bob McCoy, last year's winners in the men's division, signed Monday to defend their title. Also, the defending champions in the women's division, Misses Martha Cleveland and Johnnie Carter, signed to bowl together this year.

With the major handicap division being scheduled at the Lucky Strike and Bick's Bowling Center drives and the new non-league (no average) division, added last year, billed at the new bowling palace, in addition to the two centers already named, there will be plenty of alleys for all contestants.

Bowling hours have been set for 11 a. m., 1:30, 5:00 and 7:30 p. m. With the tournament scheduled to reach even greater proportions this year, it was necessary to make added arrangements to accommodate the players.

HANDICAP SYSTEM.

The handicap system assures all league players an even chance to win, with the handicaps being the "hypodermic" that balances the scoring of the lowest and highest average bowlers. The non-league group is staged for men and women who do not have bona fide averages; thus, this group is on an equal basis.

This event stimulates "tournament fever" as more participants take part in the meet than in any one day bowling contest staged anywhere annually.

There is no entry fee to be paid, only the cost of the five games to be bowled. Get your partner and file your entry at either of the centers mentioned.

Georgia-Florida Ump Referees in Meet

WAXCROSS, Ga., Feb. 26.—(AP)—One of the whistle-tooters for the Eighth District Girls' basketball tournament getting underway on Wednesday is none other than A. N. Shelly, of Pavo, whom last summer's baseball rosters remember as one of the men in blue behind the plate in the Georgia-Florida league.

Racing Roundup

MIAMI, Fla., Feb. 26.—(AP)—Long shots dominated the field as Hialeah park entered its final week of the racing season today.

Lady Orchid, paying $30.70 for $2, gave back the best of the return of the day when she galloped to a half-length victory in the seventh. Pure Lus followed and Beauty B. was third.

Apprentice Jockey Merrill Packer began a double session in blue by riding Magic Dream, a 6 to 1 shot, to victory in the third. Phoebe was second and King Neptune third in that event.

The eighth race developed into a three-way photo finish which ultimately showed a tie for Jacquetta and Major-Minor. Jacquetta paid $9.20, and Major-Minor $6.70. Humblum was third.

W. F. Managly's Liberty Flight, a rank outsider from New Orleans, surprised the betting public by winning the ninth race, paying $10.00 for $2.

Shows up topped home a length and a half in the lead in the fifth race, paying $23.00 and making the six furlongs in 1:10.35, one of the fastest times for the distance this season. He paid $2.60.

High One was in second place and Dunard was third.

Shows up topped home a length and a half in the lead in the fifth race, paying $23.00 and making the six furlongs in 1:10.35, one of the fastest times for the distance this season. He paid $2.60.

React won the first race, paying $19, and with a heavily backed Bino the second race victor, the daily double paid only $49 for $2.

Smith, Aide Will Remain At Villanova

Loyola University Releases 'Clipper' and His Assistant From Contract.

LOS ANGELES, Feb. 26.—(AP)—Charles A. Bissone, chairman of the Loyola University athletic board, tonight said the board had released Maurice "Clipper" Smith from any obligations to serve at Loyola as football coach.

"We graciously release him from his commitment to be head football coach at Loyola University," said Bissone. "We wish him success."

He added the board would immediately take up the problem of employing a new coach.

PHILADELPHIA, Feb. 26.—(AP)—Maurice "Clipper" Smith said tonight he intended to send a telegram to Rev. Father Lorenzo Malone, of Loyola University, Los Angeles, that he would not leave Villanova.

"I intend to repeat what I told them over the telephone last Friday night that I am not leaving Villanova," Smith declared. "Neither Vince nor I intend to go out to California because we see no reason for the trip."

Smith and Vince McNally, his assistant, announced two weeks ago they had submitted their resignations to accept similar positions at Loyola. On Saturday they announced Villanova had refused to accept their resignations and they would remain here.

In The TRAINING CAMPS

HARTNETT DRILLS UNDERSTUDIES.

AVONDALE, Feb. 26.—(AP)—Manager Gab Hartnett said today he planned to stick in there at the Chicago Cubs' training camp, but just the same he's spending lots of time these days working with his minor league players—Clyde McCullough and Bob Collins.

"I want to make sure about these boys before the season starts," Hartnett explained. "I won't be carrying any excess baggage."

RUFFING, CHANDLER MISSING. ST. PETERSBURG, Fla., Feb. 26.—All the pitchers except Charley Ruffing and Soid Chandler were turned down today when the world champion New York Yankees swung into spring training with a two-hour workout.

Both of the hurlers are unsigned but Chandler has notified Manager Joe McCarthy he will be here tomorrow or Wednesday. Ruffing, however, has no report for another week, was a surprise arrival and worked out.

Bill Dickey and Buddy Roser were the catchers missing. Dickey has not signed his contract and nothing has been heard as to his arrival but Roser is in town and is expected to don a uniform tomorrow.

With Outfielders George Selkirk, Jake Powell and Charley Keller and Infielder Billy Knickerbocker augmenting the battery staff, the practice session was confined to hitting and shagging flies.

HAYES NOT FOR SALE. ANAHEIM, Cal., Feb. 26.—Connie Mack, of the Athletics, turned down today another "feeder" for the A's hold-out catcher, Frankie Hayes.

The A's manager said he had been asked by Fred Haney, manager of the St. Louis Browns, whether he would be interested in trade for Hayes. "Absolutely not," Connie said, he replied. "Connie rejected a similar 'feeder' from Cleveland yesterday."

SEVEN TIGERS MISSING. LAKELAND, Fla., Feb. 26.—Only seven members of the Detroit Tiger squad of 38 players were missing from training headquarters today despite the fact that the infielders and outfielders were not required to report until Sunday.

Among the missing was Louie (Buck) Newsom, noisy, pitching veteran, and Manager Del Baker said that he had received no word from him.

Looks like we've got another Boats Poffenberger," Baker commented. Poffenberger was a late arrival here last season to Brooklyn, was absent from the American league campaign opened.

The Tigers went through a stiff exercise routine today.

CLINT BROWN UNSIGNED. CHICAGO, Feb. 26.—Unlikely or not, 12 members of the Chicago White Sox left today for Pasadena, Cal., where spring training begins Wednesday afternoon under Manager Jimmy Dykes.

The only unsigned Sox pitcher, Relief Hurler Clint Brown, was absent. Appleton, acquired from Washington during the winter, accepted terms before the train pulled out.

Crackers Turn Back Jersey Squad, 42-39

Bob Lieb Brilliant Figure in 25th Victory of Atlanta Cage Team.

The old ball game was very gray around the temples last night when Bob Lieb, a lithe, greyhound-like guard turned the tide for the Atlanta Crackers as they rubbed out a lead held by St. Cecilia Holy Name basketball team and whipped the New Jersey state champions, 42-39 on the spacious Henry Grady court, a hardwood strange to both teams.

It was the superhuman efforts of the former Little All-America from Roanoke College that really made possible the Crackers' 25th victory of the year over perhaps the slickest independent team to pay this city a visit in several years.

One-Man Show.

Lieb took over after St. Cecilia's sensational third quarter attack shot them into a six-point lead with only six minutes to play. Blocking shots, coming out of mix-ups with the ball and stealing it right away from the Jersey slickers, Bob turned in the greatest one-man defensive show witnessed hereabouts in a long while.

With a minute and a half to play and his team trailing by one point, Lieb outfoxed a St. Cecilia player, and was fouled as he started to break down court. He got two shots and made both of them good to put the Crackers out in front. Shortly thereafter, Virlyn Moore decided the issue by sinking a crisp.

Waive Foul Rule.

The foul rule was waived and both teams were guilty of excessive roughness, particularly in the first half, which saw the Crackers amass a 29-24 advantage. By pre-game arrangement, it was agreed that when a player committed his fifth foul, his opponent would get an extra shot. And since each team had three players who committed four or more personals, it was a game in which the free throw played a predominant part.

With the ailing Cherry Foster and Ed Copeland unable to be in uniform, the Crackers were short of reserve strength and very, very short of breath as the torrid battle turned into the stretch. But Mr. Lieb didn't seem to tire and apparently inspired by his efforts, the wobbly Crackers summoned, somehow, a final burst of power to beat their strongest opponent of the year, excepting the Celtics.

LOOKING JUST AHEAD.

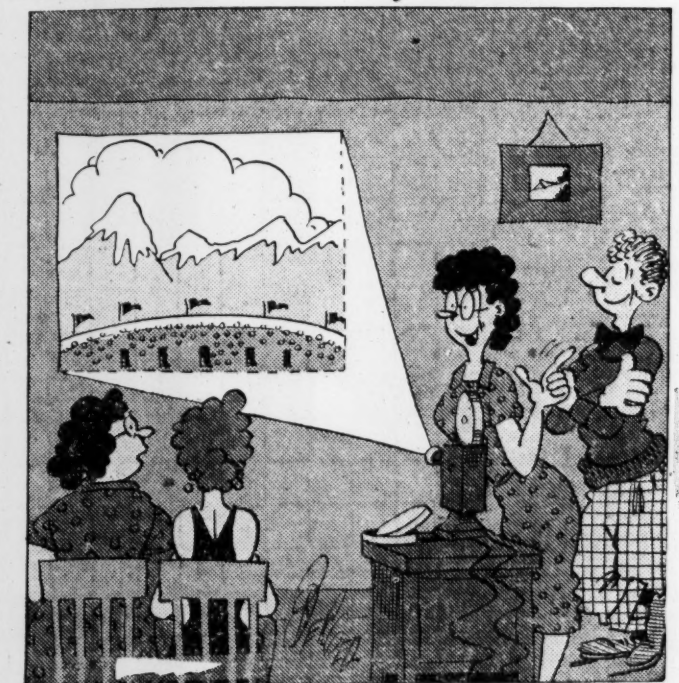

As Shelley said, "If winter comes, can spring be far behind?" I think I heard a bluebird sing above the wintry grind. I almost heard a three-base hit that whistled down the land I went and got my niblick out to wade into the sand.

Suppose it's snowing? What of that? Bill Dickey's on his way. And young Bob Feller's warming up to leave the western hay. It's spring again, and four-inch cups look like so many tubs. As hope eternal springs again for seven million dubs.

I see them dash from spot to spot around the open bases. The hounds of spring are getting hot on winter's fading traces. They're off again—the game is on—old winter's almost done. And we'll be blowing two-foot putts and glaring at the sun.

TIME OUT!

PRATHER, KELLER AND 'HUFF' WERE ALL-CONFERENCE

Georgia Has Kirkland and Chatham; Lewis Is Tech Star.

KNOXVILLE, Tenn., Feb. 26.—(AP)—Apart from the team battles, some brilliant individual performances are in the offing this week end in the seventh annual Southeastern conference basketball tournament.

Returning from last year's all-tournament team are Irving Keller, Mississippi forward; Googe Prather, Alabama, center, and Gilbert Huffman, Tennessee, guard. Bounding out the quintet with this trio were Albert (Pinky) Lipscomb, Vanderbilt forward, and Bernie Opper, Kentucky, guard.

There promises to be plenty of competition for each post, with every team in the league boasting its share of flashy individualists, offensively and defensively.

To mention a few, there are Guard Edgar Hudson and Forward James Brantner to go along with Alabama's Prather, one of the league's leading scorers.

Seasoned Team. Center Dan Kirkland and Guard Roy Chatham carried the brunt of the load for Georgia, a team studded with seasoned campaigners.

Huffman, Tennessee's brilliant guard, had to share honors with Forward Bernie Mehen, sophomore sensation, and Center Frank Thomas.

Coach Adolph Rupp of Kentucky smiles broadly when he mentions his pair of guards, Lay (Mickey) Rouse and Lee Huber. They have borne a large share of the Wildcats' offensive burden.

Mississippi boasts a hot scoring combination in Forwards Burnell Egger and Keller. The former averaged about 16 points a game for the season.

Paul Brotherton, a net-swishing forward, has been Louisiana State's chief offensive gun. He has a lot of capable help, especially from Center Charley Bozeman.

A sophomore, Lew Lewis, paced Georgia Tech, but Veteran Captain W. H. Hayman and J. W. Hughes gave him plenty of assistance.

AUBURN STARS.

From Auburn comes tall tales of the prowess of Forwards J. P. Streetman and Frank Manci and Center Shag Hawkins. Captain Walter Craig, a fancy ball-handler, has been Mississippi State's chief trouble maker. The Maroons, a high-scoring outfit, will present two sterling guards in Granville Harrison and Arnold Moore.

Lipscomb has been Vandy's loudest gun until stricken with pneumonia and benched. Now the toga goes to Captain Ross Hanna, rangy center.

Two of Florida's most consistent performers have been Forward Bub Walton and Guard Frank Chalkley.

Tulane, despite a rather disastrous conference campaign, offers a couple of smoothies in Forward Johnny McGee and Center Al Bodney.

There are others, as good or better than those mentioned, which is another reason why spectators are for some lively scrapping when the three-day meet begins Thursday morning.

EX-DODGER DIES.

HAZELTON, Pa., Feb. 26.—(AP)—Matthew Broderick, of Freehold, former shortstop of the Brooklyn National League baseball team, died today. He was a graduate of Villanova College. Prior to joining Brooklyn, he was in the old Tri-State League.

SECOND SACKER—Connie Ryan, young ex-L. S. U. athlete, is scheduled to play second base for the Crackers this summer. He is a strapping youngster and comes highly recommended. First picture of Ryan is presented above.

NAPS Cancel Game, Play Athens Friday

The game between North Avenue and Druid Hills girls, scheduled for this afternoon, was canceled because Druid Hills is playing in the fifth district tourney. Naps will meet the Athens High girls Friday night at 7:30 on the Y. W. C. A. court.

PERRIN WINS.

NEW ORLEANS, Feb. 26.—(AP)—Jimmy Perrin, of New Orleans, won a decision from Joey Archibald, world's featherweight champion, in a 10-round bout here tonight.

ROUGH GAME.

ALBANY, Ga., Feb. 26.—(AP)—Picturesque observation by Jimmy Robinson, Albany Herald sports editor: "Every player on the Omega and Norman Park girls teams kissed the hardwood at least five times in a semifinals scrap at Moultrie."

State Basketball

FIFTH DISTRICT MEET. CHAMBLEE, Ga., Feb. 26.—The fifth district girls' basketball tournament will begin at Chamblee tomorrow night at 8 o'clock with 12 teams entered in the B division and four in the C event. The meet will run through Saturday night.

In the B group, however, the Clarkston and Southwest Dekalb sextets are considered to be capable contenders, and should either stop Avondale it would not be too great an upset. Avondale and the DeKalbs are the seeded entries.

The boys' tournament was played last week at Clarkston with Clarkston romping on West Fulton in the final round, 69-29, to cap the B title. Palmer Stone took out the Mansfield lads, 32-20, to take the C crown.

Tuesday night's pairings follow: Lithonia vs. Conyers at 7 p. m.; Clarkston vs. Stone Mountain at 8 p. m.; Porterdale vs. Decatur at 9 p. m.; Druid Hills vs. Richardson at 10 p. m.; Clarkston, Avondale and Southwest Dekalb drew byes.

The C division pairings pit Palmer Stone against Mansfield and Livingston against Tucker the following night.

Farr Won't Fight Joe: To Enter Navy

LONDON, Feb. 26.—(UP)—Tommy Farr, Welsh heavyweight, announced today that he would reject an offer for a return title bout with Champion Joe Louis at New York this summer, and try to enter the British navy.

...FIGHT FOR LOVE...

Milton Tells Star That Nina Called, Wants Her to Come Back to Work

By SYLVIA TAYLOR.

SYNOPSIS.
Star Bright's mother, divorced when Star was a child, constantly talks of better days and her stepfather Joe Delevan is mysterious about driving a truck at night. Star makes no friends as she can't entertain anybody at home. When she graduates from high school her stepfather teacher sends her to Nina Lambert, novelist, who wants a secretary to live with her. Nina's son Bob falls in love with Star and when he plans an early marriage, Nina has Star bring her mother for dinner and purposely serves too much champagne. Star feels disgraced by Mamie's conduct and though Bob reassures her she leaves secretly. She falls and she is tempted to leap from a yacht harbor pier. Milton Wood, magazine business manager and a friend of Nina, stops her. He gives her a job and she idealizes him that it is a shock when she learns he is married. Joe is killed by racketeers and Star must support Mamie. Wood makes Star his secretary. She sees Wood's beautiful wife Jennifer in a cafe with a fur-tive-eyed man and when she sees Jennifer leaving this man's apartment across the hall from Mamie's, Mrs. Wood tries to buy her silence with a gift of jewelry. Star refuses it and admits she loves Milton. He dines nightly with Star when Jennifer goes to Europe, then stops suddenly, blaming himself that they have come to love each other. Nina and Bob return from Europe and Bob won't take "no" when Star says she loves somebody else. Nina blames herself. NOW GO ON WITH THE STORY.

INSTALLMENT XXV.

"I couldn't, Mrs. Lambert. Oh, I'm so fond of you both," Star said unhappily. "I'll do anything else in the world for you."
"This is all my fault," Nina said soberly.
"But it isn't. You couldn't help my falling in love with some one else."
"So that's it. There's someone else now. Are you going to marry him?"
Determined not to indicate who it was, Star said, "No, but I can't marry Bob."
She had expected Nina to be secretly relieved at her decision, but she seemed far from it.
Bob took Star home. On the way his spirits recovered sufficiently for him to say hopefully, "Everything is going to come out all right. Don't you worry, Star. I'll be home for Christmas and I'll be going to write..."
What a price paid for loving the wrong person, Star thought bitterly. Her pillow that night was wet with tears. Yet the image of Milton brought her a sense of peace. Long ago she had vowed never to hurt him. She must keep that promise whatever the cost to herself.
And the next morning in his office they played what she recognized as their final scene as employer and secretary. The blower she had been dreading fell, but in a different way from what she had expected.
"Nina has telephoned me," Milton said, glancing at her with the old, tortured look in his eyes. "Your decision makes me feel that I am responsible. I'm sorry, Star. If it weren't for me you'd be marrying a swell kid."
"Bob is too young for me," she said in that small stammering voice she used when he was pushing her away from him. "Give me credit at least for knowing my own mind."
Milton sighed, then he asked, "Would you like to go back and work for Nina again?"
"What do you mean?"
"She told me yesterday she would have to have a secretary but she never expected to find one she liked as well as you. Today she telephoned to ask if you'd consider coming back to her. I told her you'd have to have as much money as I had intended to pay you at the end of six months and she agreed."
"She knows I was looking for a position then?"
"Certainly not. But you know Nina. If she wants something she wants it. Her argument is that it is more important for her to have a sympathetic secretary than it is for me. There are so few girls she can dictate to without feeling self-conscious and besides, as she reminded me, she discovered you first."
"She probably guesses the truth," Star said thoughtfully. "But if I have to leave you I'd rather go back to Nina than any place I know of. Especially if Bob isn't there."
"I shall feel better about it," too," he admitted. "Life at Nina's will be more interesting for you. There will always be people around. Sometimes we may even have a glimpse of each other."

Within the hour Star had called the stenographic department notifying them of the change. How she disliked and envied that girl who came to take her place. But the prospect of working again for Nina had many advantages. One couldn't be bored or lonely in that house.

Going back made Star happier than anything that had happened for a long time. Her little room and bath seemed to welcome her with open arms.

Bob had left for New York and Nina seemed to need her as she used to before his return. Nina's friends remembered her with cordial greetings. It was soothing to the girl's harassed nerves to be in the stimulating, cheerful atmosphere Nina managed to create about her. Almost overnight Star had resumed all her former duties. Making and breaking Nina's complicated social engagements, serving the cocktails, helping Mrs. Epperson with the tiny decorative canapes.

She had a definite place in that house and there were no memories of Milton to haunt her. Also with her increased salary she was able to purchase the clothes she needed.

In spite of the fact that she was Nina's secretary, her status had indefinitely changed. Nina treated her more than ever as a daughter. She even suggested that if Star wished she might accept invitations for her men friends. But this Star refused to do. She knew Nina too well to take advantage of an offer which might be withdrawn later. The writer's moods and bursts of generosity were too subject to change. In some cases it might be all right. In others—and Star would never know what constituted the difference—Nina would resent it. The wisest course, therefore, was to refuse. And she was rewarded by the increased affection and confidence of her employer, who confessed one night as they sat before a fire in the writing-room fireplace that her own heart had been broken long ago.

"None of these men I am playing around with mean anything to me," Nina admitted, waving the amber cigarette holder. "I can understand how you feel, my dear, because for years I have been in love with a man I can't have."

It was difficult to imagine the vivacious Nina as the victim of a broken heart, although Star had always suspected that none of the men who surrounded her meant anything to her.
"I was very young when Bob was born," Nina continued in a reminiscent mood. "And only 35 when I was left a widow. My marriage had not been a happy one, so that it is not strange my freedom went to my head. The first thing I did was to fall head over heels in love with a man eight years younger than I was. That was five years ago, Star, but the strange part about it is he never knew it."

"Thinking of her own situation, Star asked, "Why? Was he married?"
"Not at first. He used to take me out occasionally but it was never what could be called a romance. We were just friends so far as he knew, and in spite of every effort I made—some of them ridiculous now looking back on it—he could not or would not see me in any other way. But I never stopped hoping."

"Until the day he actually married some one else I told myself the miracle might happen. It never did. After it was over I went into an emotional tailspin worthy of my most neurotic heroine but thank heavens he did not know about that either. To this day he has no idea how I felt about him." Star said sympathetically. "I can imagine what you went through."
"That's when I adopted a new motto," Nina said brightly but there were tears in her gray eyes. "Would you like to hear it?"

"Very much," Nina quoted softly.
"Light loves stand clear of thunder," Nina quoted softly.

Yes, Star thought. This gave her the key to much of Nina's nature which had been a mystery.
"I suppose it would be easier," she said. "But I'm afraid I could never do it."

"Oh, my dear," Nina protested. "I am not recommending such a course for you. You are much too young and beautiful. Eventually you'll either marry Bob or meet some one else. Your whole life is before you. Love isn't over at 20."

"I'm not quite 19 yet," Star admitted.
"All the more reason, then. I didn't tell you this so that you would follow my example, but so you would realize that I, too, know how a broken heart can hurt."

Star said gratefully, "I know, you're very kind."
"I've been very selfish," Nina disagreed. "But if there is ever any way I can make it up to you..."
"Let's not talk about it," Star pleaded. "I told you I understood."

The conversation forced her to think about something besides her own troubles. Who would have dreamed that the sophisticated writer with her happy-go-lucky manner and easygoing ways could ever have suffered the way Star was suffering now?

After Star had retired, she began to wonder if one of the men who frequented Nina's house was this unnamed man. Nina had told her he was married now but most of the men who were frequent visitors at her home were unmarried. Those who weren't came with their wives.

Suddenly an intuition made Star sit up in bed. Could Nina have meant Milton? But why? She had told her he was married now, which would make him just eight years younger than Nina. Yet, it dovetailed perfectly. No wonder he didn't suspect it. It probably had never occurred to him he was Milton after all. But if it were, how strange that Nina and her secretary should both love the same man?

Your Own Horoscope for Feb. 27th

By ALICE DENTON JENNINGS, Noted Atlanta Chirologist.

March 21st and April 19th (ARIES)—In the morning and until 1:32 p. m. favors working in old, established affairs. After 1:32 p. m. favors sports, educational matters, ordinary business, but glamor of any kind should be avoided.

April 20th and May 20th (TAURUS)—A combination of influences previous to 1:40 p. m. favors efforts in matters of beauty, art, social affairs. The day does not especially favor mechanical or industrial affairs. Today is an excellent day to make plans for the future.

May 21st and June 20th (GEMINI)—A combination of influences previous to 8:37 p. m. do not favor new or important undertakings. An excellent day to stick to routine.

June 21st and July 22nd (CANCER)—The day favors buying, shopping, artistic ideas, social events, dealing with women. During the evening hours and until 10:33 a. m. tomorrow morning unexpected news may cause you to change your plans advantageously.

July 23rd and August 22nd (LEO)—All you do today needs thought and plenty of it, so avoid haste and impulsiveness. High pressure may work, but it also may result in confusion and irritation.

Aug. 23rd and Sept. 22nd (VIRGO)—An excellent day to continue your routine duties and not undertake additional responsibilities. However, where due thought is taken this can be a favorable day for land sales, rentals and general business.

Sept. 23rd and Oct. 22nd (LIBRA)—An excellent day to evolve new ideas and methods. Favorable accomplishment may be made in intellectual, educational and religious matters.

Oct. 23rd and Nov. 21st (SCORPIO)—An excellent day for making changes, for dealing with people of unusual abilities and for affairs related to educational and electrical devices.

Nov. 22nd and Dec. 21st (SAGITTARIUS)—An excellent day for appointments, meetings, financial matters, public and social matters. A good day for allowing your enthusiasm and ambitions full range.

Dec. 22nd and Jan. 19th (CAPRICORN)—You may see only the bright side of things before 7:33 a. m., but if you look closer, new propensities may have a "cat in the bag." After 7:33 a. m. you can come to more agreeable solutions, make easier progress and look for more favorable developments.

Jan. 20th and Feb. 18th (AQUARIUS)—Make the most of opportunities presented today, or go out after new opportunities. After the advice of others. After 3:36 p. m. favors interviews, correspondence and contacts with the opposite sex.

Feb. 19th and March 20th (PISCES)—Previous to 5:56 p. m. marks a period when extravagances and unnecessary expenditures should be guarded against. After 5:56 p. m. does not favor taking on new obligations, and is a period to be cautious in making promises and agreements.

WE, THE PEOPLE—A story which in some respects rivals that of the fictional Jean Valjean will be told on Gabriel Heaters' "We, the People" program over WGST at 8 o'clock tonight.

Warden Lewis E. Lawes, of Sing Sing, author of "20,000 Years in Sing Sing" and one of the world's greatest penologists, will bring to the microphone William Hartfield, whose career, in part, parallels that of the famous character in Victor Hugo's "Les Miserables."

CAVALCADE—Henry Hull, eminent actor of stage and screen and originator of the role of Jeeter Lester in "Tobacco Road" back in 1933, will play the part of Enoch Crosby, "The Spy," in the Cavalcade of America air dramatization of that title to be heard over WAGA at 8 o'clock tonight.

Enoch Crosby died bearing the stigma of Tory, his services known only to the executive command of the Revolutionary army. Cavalcade's attempt to right an injustice over 160 years old will reveal the true facts of Crosby's association with General George Washington, British Commander Sir Henry Clinton and John Jay.

BIG TOWN—Steve Wilson, the racket-busting managing editor, and his star reporter, Lorelei Kilbourne, will ferret out another Page One story for the "Illustrated Press" during the broadcast of "Big Town," to be heard over WGST at 7 o'clock tonight.

Edward G. Robinson, in the role of Wilson, and Lorelei, played by lovely Ona Munson, screen star, will uncover and smash another racket which threatens the happiness of residents of "Big Town."

INFORMATION—Dr. Roy Chapman Andrews, famed scientist, lecturer, explorer and author, who has discovered dinosaur eggs and thousands of fossils, will join the staff of experts on "Information Press" during its broadcast to be heard over WAGA at 7:30 o'clock tonight. Dr. Oliver St. John Gortary, the brilliant and witty Irish physician and author, will star in a return engagement as a fellow guest.

The two old faithfuls, John Kieran and Franklin P. Adams, will be on hand to keep the cash register from ringing. Clifton Fadiman, master of ceremonies, will shoot the questions at the quartet.

SCOTT'S SCRAPBOOK

By R. J. SCOTT

At the COURTHOUSE

Chief George Mathieson, of the Fulton county police department was back at his desk yesterday sporting a Florida sun tan. The chief and Mrs. Mathieson spent the week end at Miami.

Mrs. Lillian Jenkins Wicher, superior court deputy clerk, was back on the job yesterday after a week's illness.

Judge A. L. Etheridge, Fulton superior court, yesterday ordered Dr. F. J. Guffrida, convicted last April on a three-count indictment for procuring an abortion, to pay a fine of $1,500 or begin serving a three year public works sentence. This order followed a court of appeals order denying a new trial.

The county commissioners yesterday authorized the purchase of a liquid asphalt heating plant. County Commissioner J. A. Raggsdale, chairman of the public works committee, was authorized to ask the county purchasing department to receive bids immediately. The equipment is needed for repairing work, it was said.

J. W. Sanders, a carpenter who was employed February 21 at $90 a month for temporary work in the parks department, was dismissed yesterday by the commission. The designer, J. C. Glavin,

Hailey, in moving for his discharge, pointed out that the county had other carpenters who could be shifted to this work.

TE CAPITOL

State Department of Public Welfare, Brasswell Dean, director, announced. Stevenson also was at one time a member of The Constitution staff.

Carl Nelson, of Dublin, and R.
Hogan, of Dudley, were visitors at the capitol yesterday.

Commissioner Lon Sullivan, of the State Department of Public Safety, yesterday warned motorists to exercise caution at railroad crossings. He reported that 30 people died in motor vehicle-railroad accidents in 1939 as compared with 32 the previous year. Three were killed in a train-car accident near Jenkinsville.

Chancellor S. V. Sanford will go to Athens today to participate in the final inspection of the new boys' dormitory at the University of Georgia. President Harmon

Caldwell, Regent Abit Nix and R. H. Drifmiller, supervising engineer, also will attend the inspection. The Council will be held at 11 o'clock this morning.

A Ship Goes Down

SURVIVOR This empty lifeboat was found at the scene of the recent sinking of the British tanker Gretafield, downed by a submarine. All of the ship's crew were saved except 11 men.

BIRTHDAY The white Rane of Sarawak celebrated her birthday in a New York hospital. Nurses presented her with a cake. Nervous exhaustion forced her to interrupt a lecture tour.

"YOU'RE THE IDOL—" Somewhere in Finland, a group of Swedish volunteers serenade a pretty Lotta Svard girl after she had found the traditional way to their hearts by serving them a good old-fashioned dinner. Maybe it's a Scandinavian version of "Sweet Adeline" they're singing.

SAVED This crude cross, all that remained of a warehouse in the seaport town of Turku, Finland, after a Russian bombing raid, stands in mute testimony of the savage destruction caused by the falling bombs. It is a thought-provoking memento of an episode of grim war.

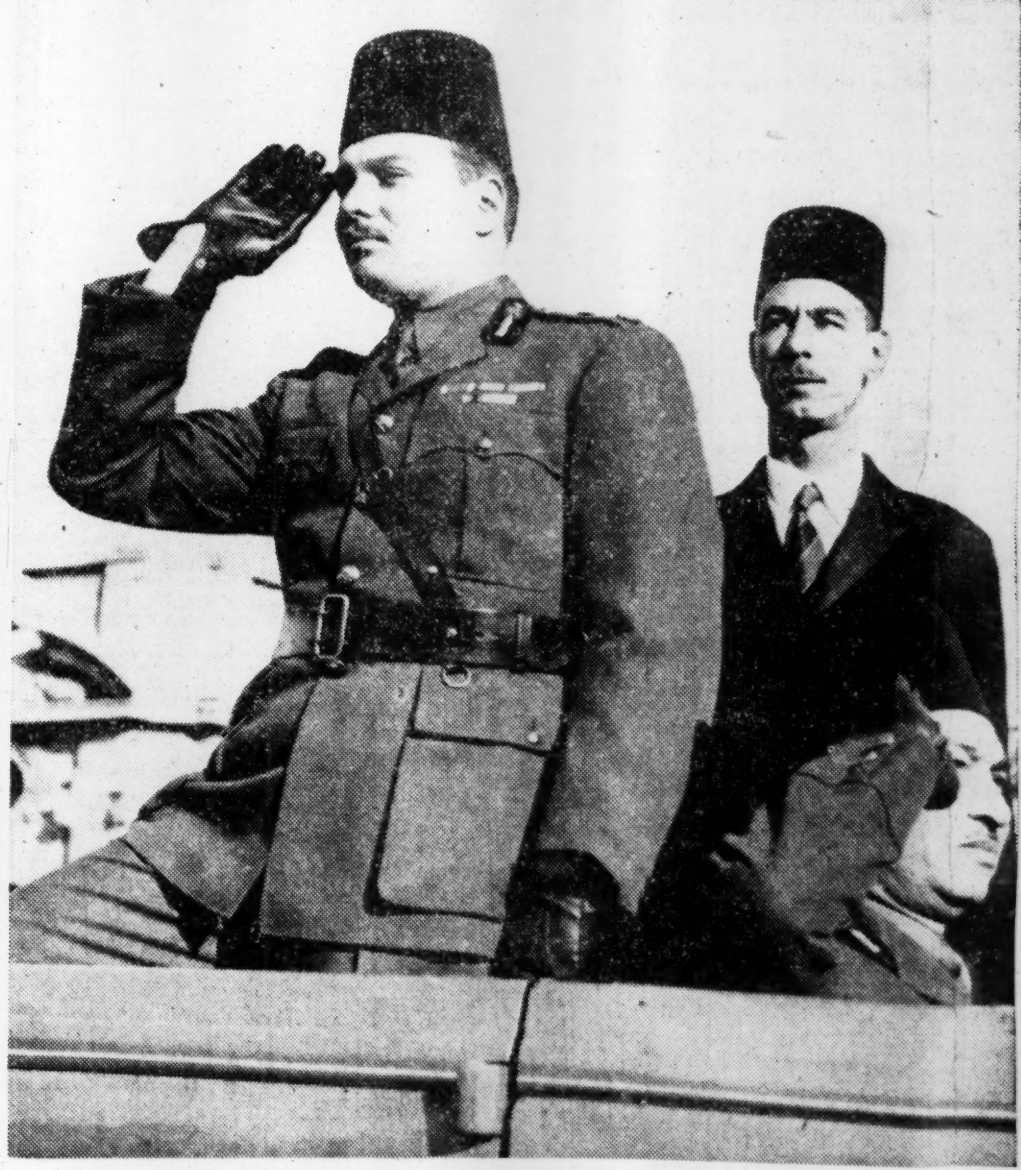

BOY??? Smacking the old drum with royal goodwill is this huge drummer "boy" as Egyptian territorials pass in review before their King and the Allied high command of the Near East.

HUNGRY Seas have eaten away the shore line at Long Branch, N. J., endangering hundreds of homes. Note the homes on the edge of the 45-foot cliff. Not so sweet! Other homes are in like plight on the brink.

SCARED Virginia Faith Davis, 22, of Philadelphia, reached home yesterday from France. She was called before a court as a spy suspect. But it came out all right, she's glad to say, but she trembled.

SALUTE! Among those very much present when that drummer in the picture at the left did his stuff was Egypt's ruler, young King Farouk I. The review took place recently at ancient Cairo. The King snapped out plenty of salutes, like the one caught by the camera when this "shot" was taken.
